Chance Here To See Sputnik, Laika Flameout

Weatherman Says Cloud Possible For Satellite's Plunge to Death

Flaming death of Sputnik II, expected early Sunday morning, could as well be over Victoria as anywhere else in the world, Dr. R. M. Petrie, director of Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, said today.

The Russian dog-carrying satellite, which has been orbiting around the earth at 18,000 miles per hour since Nov. 3, has been sinking steadily and now is critically close to the earth's atmosphere.

Speed of its passage as it enters the atmosphere is expected to cause air friction that will set it glowing like a meteor until it burns itself and its dead dog passenger to nothing.

"I don't think anyone can predict where it will fall," Dr. Petrie said. "The earth is a big place, and a lot of it is unpopulated, but our chance of seeing it fall is as good as anyone else's—very slim."

Chances will be made even slimmer by the weather, which weatherman William Mackie said will not co-operate for the Sputnik crossings tonight at 7.30 and 9 p.m.

"We are predicting cloudy skies this evening and rain early Sunday morning," he said.

Becomes Matter of Aerodynamics

"Then it ceases to be an astronomical problem and becomes one of aerodynamics," he said.

When the 1,118-pound satellite was launched it took 103.7 minutes to complete an orbit some 1,000 miles above the earth. It now makes the complete circle in 89 minutes, and has sunk to as low as 175 miles above the earth's surface.

Laika, dog passenger in the satellite, has been dead since Nov. 15.

The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., had predicted the satellite's fall for tonight, but revised its estimate on the basis of four radar sightings from the Jodrell Bank station in England.

LAIKA, the Sputnik II dog, first Earth inhabitant to enter the vast black reaches of outer space, will plunge to earth in her flaming satellite coffin within 24 hours, according to scientists tracking shrinking orbit of Russian artificial moon.

U.S. Moves to Save Rights Of Fishermen of Northwest

(See also Page 29)

SEATTLE (AP) — Recognition of historic fishing rights by the law of the sea conference in Geneva is being sought by the U.S. state department, Under-Secretary Christian A. Herter disclosed here Friday.

Herter said this would protect Pacific Northwest fishermen no matter what the conference does about changing the present three-mile territorial limit on offshore waters.

"We are trying to have retention of historically established fishing rights written into the language of any new treaty adopted by the conference that deals with sovereignty over offshore waters," the under-secretary told a news conference.

Herter said this would preserve the right of Pacific Northwest fishermen to operate along the British Columbia coast outside the present three-mile limit.

Loss of these fishing grounds would cripple Washington's fishing industry, state officials have said.

Herter arrived in Seattle Friday to address the opening banquet of the seventh annual Washington state international trade fair.

The Geneva conference apparently has deadlocked over a Canadian proposal for extending the offshore fishing limit to 12 miles, but Herter said support is growing for a compromise plan by India which would allow each nation to establish its own limit between three and 12 miles.

"This would permit independent negotiation with Canada over West Coast fishing grounds even if the 'historic rights' provision is not adopted," he said.

Herter made a strong appeal in his trade fair speech for support of the administration's reciprocal trade and mutual aid program.

"If we do not make it possible for nations of the free world to trade with us they have no alternative but to trade with the Soviet Union," he said. "What could be greater folly than to push them into the crushing embrace of the Russian bear?"

Canada, U.S. Support Conservation Measure

GENEVA (Reuters) — Canada and the United States lined up against Britain and Russia Friday in voting for a controversial fisheries conservation measure before the law of the sea conference.

The proposal was passed 27 to 22 in committee but needs a two-thirds majority for adoption at a plenary session of the 84-nation conference.

The proposal is that coastal nations may adopt unilateral fishery conservation measures if negotiations with other states concerned have not led to an agreement within six months.

If the measures are not accepted by the other states, any of the parties may take the matter to arbitration, with the measures remaining in force until a decision is reached.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O God, our Creator and Redeemer Who hast a design to be perfected in each one of us and a purpose to be wrought out through us, so possess us by Thy Holy Spirit and so guide us in all that we are called to do that each may become "the man God meant" and that each may find the place and part Thou hast raised him up to take; through Christ. Amen.

Bonds Theft Suspect Held In Montreal

Part of $1.8 Million Loot Found on Man

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Paul Pelletier, 51, today was arraigned in criminal court on two charges arising from a $1,800,000 bond theft here in January.

Pelletier, arrested in Quebec City as he allegedly attempted to pass $10,000 worth of stolen bonds, was charged with possession and theft.

Preliminary hearing was set for Friday, and he was held without bail.

Meanwhile, Sergeant Leo Plouffe, police medico-legal expert, is returning from Europe where he had been investigating reports that some of the bonds, stolen from a Montreal trust firm and its subsidiary, had appeared in Paris and Zurich, Switzerland.

He had reported success.

Police Friday night carried out a second raid in connection with the case. They said there were no arrests but some "interesting discoveries" at a west-end home.

Earlier this week, a police raid uncovered $72,000 worth of the bonds plus $1,500,000 in pure heroin.

The bonds and heroin were discovered in an expensive apartment.

Police have declined to say publicly just how the narcotics and bonds may be linked but there has been speculation that narcotics are being traded for the bonds.

NEW CRISIS IN FRANCE

PARIS (Reuters) — The French National Assembly was recalled from its Easter recess tonight for an emergency session as Premier Felix Gaillard battled for the survival of his shaky government in the Tunisian crisis.

He had reported success.

Police Friday night carried out a second raid in connection with the case. They said there were no arrests but some "interesting discoveries" at a west-end home.

Earlier this week, a police raid uncovered $72,000 worth of the bonds plus $1,500,000 in pure heroin.

The bonds and heroin were discovered in an expensive apartment.

Police have declined to say publicly just how the narcotics and bonds may be linked but there has been speculation that narcotics are being traded for the bonds.

Land, Air Attacks On Rebels

HAVANA (AP) — Government troops killed 18 rebels in an air and ground attack on a sugar mill today outside the town of Sagua la Grande near the northern coast of Los Villas province. Seven rebels were killed there Friday.

About 200 rebels fighting for Fidel Castro against the regime of President Fulgencio Batista swept into the town Friday and barricaded themselves in a school. Reliable reports said the rebels had landed on the southern coast of Las Villas three weeks ago and pushed toward Sagua la Grande, about 30 miles northeast of Santa Clara.

LINE UP GIRLS, IT'S FREE

MONTREAL (CP) — Plans have been announced for selection of a beautiful Canadian girl as "Miss Maple Leaf-Canada" to compete in the October Miss World contest in London, England.

Emile St. Pierre, Montreal businessman, said today contestants from all parts of Canada are to be brought to Montreal in September for a week of civic appearances, a talent show and a final grand ball.

The winner is to receive a cash award of $3,000, an all-expense trip to London and Paris and a $1,500 wardrobe.

BURN POWER PLANT

A Cuban army fighter plane swooped down on them with bombs and the rebels fled before government reinforcements from Santa Clara. But the insurgents in their flight burned two electric power plants, four or five gasoline tanks, a small lumber mill and two railway baggage cars.

This was the latest major outbreak in Castro's total war. Friday rebels raided the copper centre of El Cobre, 12 miles west of Santiago and touched off a dynamite explosion in a warehouse.

Santiago itself, heart of rebellious Oriente province, was quiet under the heavy guard of Batista's men.

Wolves Tie Burnley, Hold Margin

LONDON (UP) — Wolverhampton moved closer to the English Soccer League First Division championship today by playing a 1-1 tie at Burnley.

That kept Wolverhampton five points in front of second-place Preston, which was held to a 1-1 tie by visiting Aston Villa. Only two weeks remain in the regular season.

In other featured games, Tottenham blanked Manchester United, 1-0, for its second victory of the season over that club. The youthful Chelsea team scored two goals in the first half and wound up with a 2-2 tie against Bolton. Manchester United and Bolton meet in the Football Association Cup championship game at Wembley Stadium May 3.

Manchester City beat Sunderland, 3-1, to drop the losers into last place in the First Division. Sunderland now faces the prospect of falling into the Second Division for the first time in its long history.

Boy Drowns in River As Rescue Try Fails

AGASSIZ (CP) — A whirlpool on the tumbling Chénails River, north of Agassiz, took the life of a 15-year-old Surrey youth Friday as he fished with his father and two friends.

Don Stanchfield was drowned in the rapids after his father made a gallant attempt to save him from a rock in midstream.

Police said the group drove up a washed-out logging road to reach the river then climbed down crags of a canyon to the water's edge. Young Don came separated in midstream and got into difficulties.

His father swam through the near-freezing, raging water to reach him. However, the youth let go before his father reached him and was carried downstream and sucked into a whirlpool.

The body has not been recovered.

A-Bomb Death Case Doubtful

TOKYO (Reuters) — A post-mortem on a 34-year-old Japanese woman who survived the atomic bombing on Hiroshima and who died four days ago did not prove whether the bomb was an indirect cause of her death, a doctor said here today.

Doctors said earlier that the woman, Hideko Hirata, died from "radioactive cancer" following the 1945 Hiroshima raid.

Miss Hirata was one of 25 Japanese women selected to go to the United States in 1955 for free surgical treatment designed to help them toward a normal life.

Lady Wiggin explained that after her son left home she discovered some broken glass in the butter.

Weed Compound Regarded New Anti-Cancer Weapon

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says Canadian medical scientists have extracted a compound from a Jamaican weed which they believe may become a weapon in the war against leukemia and its related cancer growths.

The newspaper says the compound is from wild periwinkle, a weed that grows profusely in Jamaica.

The discovery "is so important," the paper says, that Dr. Robert L. Noble, associate director of the Collip Medical Research Laboratories at the University of Western Ontario, and an associate, J. H. Cutts, will present the findings of their research at a meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research in Philadelphia Sunday.

The Telegram adds: "Though the research group stresses that studies are still exploratory, and that any application of its findings still lies far in the future, the discoveries are regarded by cancer authorities as among the most significant of 82 projects under way in Canada through the support of the National Cancer Institute and the Canadian Cancer Society."

Slaying Jury Backs Chief On Lookout for Sex Fiend

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police Chief George Archer's warning that women should not walk Vancouver streets unescorted at night was re-emphasized Friday by a coroner's jury.

It was the only recommendation of the jury which probed the brutal sex fiend slaying of Mrs. Evelyn Mary Roche, 39.

The jury decided she was murdered—stabbed seven times in the chest and back, three times in the throat—a week ago Thursday night in a lane half a block from her home.

Police have blamed the killing on a sex fiend they fear will strike again at any time.

Frank, 14, and Sharon, 16, the victim's two children, were the chief witnesses today as the inquest was completed.

Visitor was a real estate agent Both testified that the only and "nothing unusual happened" the afternoon and early evening before their mother went out to her death.

John McKenna, a railway machinist, told of finding the body late Thursday while on his way to work.

He also said he saw a young man in a two-tone blue car make two trips around the area without apparent reason while he (McKenna) waited for a friend to help him.

He said he thought the car might be a 1956 model Chevrolet.

Detective Sergeant Bill Morphet said the first officer sent on the murder call saw a similar car parked several blocks away at Broadway and Sloane as he rushed to the scene.

However, the officer took no further note of the car and police have not been able to trace it since then.

OTTAWA (CP)—The army's new armored personnel carrier is almost ready for the production line.

Formality at Minimum For Princess in B.C.

High formality will be kept to a minimum during the visit of Princess Margaret to B.C. July 12 to 26, government sources said today.

This is being done to enable her to meet as many of the public as possible without over-tiring her.

Full details of her visit will be announced within two weeks. Deputy Provincial Secretary R. A. Pennington announced recently that Princess Margaret will fly directly to Victoria from England.

It is expected she will spend from July 12 to 16 in this city. Following her B.C. tour, the princess will visit 12 other Canadian cities in 15 days before leaving Canada.

It will be her first visit to Canada.

The initiative that led to the projected visit was taken in 1956 by organizers of B.C.'s centennial celebrations.

In the Washington State capital, Olympia, Governor Albert Rosellini announced Friday he would invite Princess Margaret to visit the annual Seattle Seafair parade and the Gold Cup hydroplane races.

Margaret to See Most of Country

OTTAWA (CP)—The wish of Princess Margaret to visit Canada will come true in a big way this summer.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's office said in an announcement Friday night that, while program details still have to be worked out, Margaret has approved an outline itinerary for the cross-country trip to follow her stay in B.C.

"Among the places to be visited will be the Banff and Prince Albert national parks, and the cities of Calgary, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Hamilton, Montreal, Quebec, Fredericton and Halifax. Her Royal Highness also will attend the Shakespearean Festival at Stratford, Ont," the announcement said.

"After her stay in B.C. from July 12 to 26, Princess Margaret will pay a brief visit to the national capital and have about the same amount of time in three major areas—the west, July 26-30; the central provinces, July 31-Aug. 5, including two days in Ottawa, and the Atlantic region, Aug. 6-10."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in a statement issued by his office, said:

"I know it would be the desire of all provinces to have the opportunity of extending a warmly affectionate and enthusiastic welcome. However the distances involved and the length of the visit have placed strict limitations upon what could be done."

Formal and ceremonial events are being reduced to a minimum, lest the program schedule become too tiring. Another consideration, the announcement said, was "the thought that Her

Macmillan Speeds To Avert Strikes

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan raced the clock today to find a way to head off a policy-setting strike on Britain's nationalized railroads.

Macmillan, who recently said Britons "have never had it so good," was caught between demands by railway workers for higher pay and his own wage freeze policy for controlling inflation.

The Prime Minister called a cabinet meeting for Monday. Leaders of Britain's three railway unions planned a strategy meeting for the same day.

The impending railroad strike is only one segment of spreading labor unrest that threatens the nation with its worst labor tie-up since the general strike of 1926.

London bus workers already have scheduled a wage strike for May 5. Subway workers, who come under control of the railroad unions, may join them. The union representing more than 200,000 truck drivers also plans to present new wage demands shortly to the ministry of transport, which controls the state-run British road services.

The railwaymen want an increase of about five per cent to bring their pay up to the level of other nationalized and some private industries. An arbitration board turned down their request on grounds the railways could not afford it.

Macmillan fears an increase in railroad pay would lead to a new nationwide round of wage increases resulting in higher prices.

Sir Brian Robertson, who runs the railroads for the government, appealed to the workers Friday to "do nothing at this critical and difficult time to jeopardize the future."

'LET THE BALL START ROLLING' SAYS TIMES

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times today urges the three Western powers to accept Russia's offer of ambassadorial talks in Moscow next Thursday and "let the results emerge as the ball starts rolling."

U.S. Aims For Quick NATO Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States plans to consult quickly with other NATO countries on Russia's newest terms for meetings to arrange a summit conference. The aim is to get a reply to Moscow by Thursday.

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia's latest summit note to Western powers reflects Premier Khrushchev's personal conviction that if he can face President Eisenhower across a conference table the missile race can be stopped, observers said today.

These observers see in the note, published Friday night, the same sense of haste as before, and the same insistence that no negotiations really count until the final one—that is until Khrushchev personally is able to argue with Western statesmen.

EAST-WEST SCOREBOARD:

Snags Delay Summit Date Setting

LONDON (AP)—Russia and the West seem agreed on most of the steps toward a summit conference—but a lot of snags are holding up a decision on the date.

Here is the lineup of the differing Soviet and Western positions:

Meeting in Moscow: Both sides want one later this month. Russia would confine the discussion only to fixing time, place and composition of a foreign ministers' meeting not later than mid-May. The West wants the talks to include political issues including an agenda for the government chiefs.

Foreign ministers' talks: Both sides are ready to arrange these soon. Russia says the ministers' task should be only to fix time, place and membership of the summit conference. The West insists the ministers also should define possible areas of agreement at the summit, which means power to negotiate.

Summit meeting: Both sides say they want it to ease world tensions. The Russians demand the conference be held even if preliminary talks fail. The West insists it would be wrong to hold summit talks only for propaganda—they must offer hope of good results.

Place and time: Russia says it is ready to hold one anywhere convenient to President Eisenhower, including the United States. The West says Geneva in neutral Switzerland will do. Canada and Sweden also have been suggested. Russia would like the meeting in the summer. The West thinks an October conference, if all goes well, is the earliest they could manage.

Composition: Russia wants as many Communist as Western nations, plus some described as neutrals. The West would like to confine it to the Big Four, but would accept certain neutrals.

A group of 32 paintings by members of the Royal Canadian Academy will be shown at the Art Gallery, Moss Street, April 15 to May 4.

Paintings were selected from the 1957 exhibition of this long-established institution.

Medical Mirror

- X-Rays
- Weather and Blood Pressure

Q: After hearing so much about radiation injury I am almost afraid to have an X-ray. Just how harmful are such examinations?

A: Let's start from scratch and see if this business of radiation (X-rays are one form of radiation) can be put in its proper place. First, it would be best not to be exposed to radiation in any amount. But we are. Throughout our lives we are sprinkled with radiation from natural sources such as cosmic rays that filter down from outer space. Within recent years we have been exposed to a little more radiation than usual through atom bomb fallout. The total amount of natural and fall-out radiation received so far is small. In fact, it is only a fraction of the amount that the average person can safely stand. Scientists refer to this safe amount as "permissible dose." It's something like living on an allowance. You can't help spending a small part of this allowance for natural radiation. A little more might be used to have your teeth X-rayed. Still more might go for a chest X-ray or some other medical procedure. If X-ray (radiation) will help your doctor diagnose or cure some condition that troubles you, it would be foolish to refuse. The benefits far exceed the harm. Physicians are schooled in the proper use of X-ray and other radiation equipment. They employ these tools only when there is something to be gained.

Q: Are shoe-fitting X-ray machines safe?

A: It depends upon what you mean by "safe." Some shoe-fitting X-ray machines are probably as safe as the manufacturers can make them—others are anything but safe. Shoes can be properly fitted without such gadgets. Why spend part of your radiation allowance for a needless procedure?

Material in MEDICAL MIRROR is based on various scientific publications and does not necessarily reflect the opinion of all doctors. The diagnosis and treatment of disease requires the skill and knowledge which only a physician can apply by personally attending the patient.

Father, Son Burned as Fire Hits Mainland Peat Plant

From CP Dispatches

VANCOUVER—A 60-year-old man and his son were injured Friday night in a $34,000 blaze which destroyed three main buildings of a peat plant in suburban South Burnaby.

J. O. Johnson, first to spot the blaze at Meadowland peat plant near his home, suffered extensive burns as he drove a tractor out of a blazing building. His 22-year-old son, Lavorne Johnson, was burned less severely.

Thousands of sightseers from surrounding districts jammed streets leading to the plant.

Firemen said flames crackled 200 feet in the air at the height of the blaze. A number of gasoline barrels in the buildings exploded.

John W. McArthur, manager of the plant, said only 50 per cent of the operation was insured and that six men would be out of work.

"BOAT BANDITS" ACTIVE

VANCOUVER—Vancouver's "boat bandits" struck again early today. They sped off in a speedboat from a waterfront dock after cracking two safes at the offices of Vancouver Barge Transportation. Both safes were empty. Police believe the boat bandits are responsible for theft of a strong-box containing $4,000 from Pacific Produce Company last weekend.

VANCOUVER—City council will decide Monday whether it will join the provincial government and other municipalities in opposing the application of B.C. Telephone Company for telephone rate increases.

CHEHALIS—Cartridges for a rifle made in 1863 have been discovered in a tin can cached inside a tree near this community 50 miles east of Vancouver.

Thirty-four shells for the ancient 45-90 rifle were found when a logger felled the tree. An old plate and bone handles from a knife and fork were also in the cache.

MURDER CLUES SOUGHT

VANCOUVER—Plainclothes detectives mingled with mourners at the funeral of murder victim Mrs. Evelyn Mary Roche, Thursday, watching for any clue which could help them solve the crime.

Mrs. Roche was staffed to death near her home April 3 while returning from a shopping trip. Despite intensive efforts, police have been unable to catch the killer.

About 120 persons attended the service.

Bank and Government

MR. A. H. CAMERON, A distinguished Toronto financier, has suggested, in a letter to his clients, what strikes us as a very sound idea. He says that after his quarrel with the Bank of Canada, the Canadian Government should conduct a full and public study of the whole central banking system, to find out how it really works and whether it could work better.

While Mr. Cameron favors a royal commission for this purpose, it might be equally well served by the banking committee of Parliament which, on several previous occasions, has illuminated the whole complex problem of money in a modern society and largely devised our present system.

Canadian governments, it seems to us, are too fond of shuffling off their responsibilities on royal commissions whenever they face a difficult political issue. The responsibility for banking, like all other great social issues, rests with the government and with Parliament. They should not evade it.

The great value of a new study by the Government, within Parliament, would be educational. It would educate a new Parliament of men inexperienced in money management and it would educate a public which is obviously bewildered by the recent quarrel between the Government and its bank.

"The Bank and Government," as Mr. Cameron says, "are poles apart on monetary policy. In Mr. Fleming's eyes, the bank stubbornly pursues its own gait. The bank—one eye on the (Government's) deficit—believes it pursues the proper policy. . . . This situation today must not recur, wherever you choose to place the blame. You must agree that 'new management' and the old mechanism at the Bank of Canada could produce another row, and that we cannot spawn a political central bank, a brakeless inflationary engine."

No sensible Canadian wants another quarrel between the Government and its Bank. No one—except, perhaps, a few speculators who hope to benefit from inflation—wants to see the Bank become a brakeless inflationary engine, which certainly will happen if the Bank's independence is undermined and it is made a tool of partisan politics.

These may seem to be only abstract questions of no direct concern to the public. In fact, they are practical and immediate questions today when the Government is heading into grave financial problems, and may turn to the Bank for help.

During the fiscal year which began April 1 the Government will incur a huge budgetary deficit, possibly as large as a billion dollars on expenditures of about five billions. Such a deficit may well be wise under present conditions as a stimulant to the economy, although it can do nothing, of course, to revive our foreign markets, the main source of the business recession. But if the deficit is desirable it is not easily financed.

It can be financed by direct borrowings from the public, out of the existing money supply. That would mean only a re-distribution of the supply. Alternatively, the Government can borrow from the Bank of Canada. That would mean an expansion of the money supply.

If the Government compels the Bank to lend it new money, created for the purpose, then, as Mr. Cameron rightly concludes, "we will risk another serious bout of inflation" a little later on.

Such facts should be obvious to the new Parliament but evidently, judging by the speeches of the recent campaign, they are not. The rank and file of both political parties in Parliament is woefully ignorant of money. The nation-wide nonsense talked about money in the campaign is best forgotten, but a national assize on this subject, conducted before the public gaze in Ottawa, might prevent a repetition of this nonsense and serve to protect the management of money from political invasion.

Trade Is a Two-Way Street

TWO BRITISH COLUMBIA LUMBERMEN have conveyed some sage advice to Ottawa on tariffs and trade.

Mr. J. S. Johansson and Mr. L. R. Andrews, president and executive vice-president respectively of the B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association, have pointed out to federal authorities the extreme danger of raising barriers against the inflow of goods from the United States and Britain and thereby inviting retaliation.

To illustrate their case the British Columbia men cite two recent Canadian customs rulings affecting common grades of lumber shipped into Ontario from the United States.

If the rulings were applied similarly by the United States to Canada, British Columbia producers would be struck a body blow. Their export of shipyard and two-by-fours to the United States would virtually be eliminated.

The specific instances are cited as examples only. The lumbermen are concerned with any increase in tariffs which will shut-out the goods of countries doing business with Canada and, as a corollary, invite those countries to close the door against our exports.

Mr. Johansson and Mr. Andrews are not pressing their argument for political reasons. They are dealing with the economics of trade, conscious of the vital part it plays in Canadian and British Columbian prosperity, and anxious to see that the two-way flow is not blocked by one country in a way to spur retaliation by the other.

In their own industry the issue is of critical importance. Roughly 40 per cent of British Columbia's lumber is exported to the United States, on the basis of 1955 figures. If the door were closed to that export existing troubles in the industry would be compounded.

But while the instances cited above refer only to a certain type of lumber, the broad argument applies to all Canadian exports crossing the border.

The warning of Mr. Johansson and Mr. Andrews cannot be ignored.

Oxford Verdict on Nuclear Arms

ON MARCH 2, 1953, AN OXFORD Union vote declaring undergraduates of that famous university unwilling to fight for their King and country was confirmed 702 to 138.

The proud record of Oxford and other university men who reversed that decision when called to action in the Second World War provides its own commentary on the vote.

This year Oxford University undergraduates have voted again. About 4,000 of them have stated their position on use of nuclear weapons, two-thirds of that number—with the women students more emphatic than the men—have made known their unconditional opposition to the use of such weapons.

Sixty-eight per cent of the women favored nuclear disarmament with only 17 per cent against. Among the men 43 per cent were for such disarmament, 46 against.

Combined, the results of the ballot showed 47 per cent in favor of nuclear disarmament even without conventional disarmament, and 42 against.

Whose 'Irreparable Harm'?

SOUTH AFRICA'S PRIME MINISTER Johannes Strijdom says that the British Labor Party would bring "irreparable harm" to British-South African relations if it insisted in "unjustifiable attacks on the policies and administration of our government."

The Prime Minister complains that the Labor Party and its leaders are continually attacking South Africa's apartheid policy.

Has Mr. Strijdom by any chance considered what his administration's policies are doing to British-South African relations? If he hasn't, he might spend a profitable hour or two investigating that point.

As Our Readers See It

'Progressive' Spelling?

I have read with some interest the report in your paper of the address given by a UBC professor of classics to the PTA convention. I note that it contains a reference to "the principal that students should have some familiarity with a language other than their own"—and also the statement that the English of university students is "appalling bad."

I can only trust that these interesting variants on generally accepted spelling represent a sturdy defense of progressivism by your typesetters rather than samples of the rigid intellectual standards which the distinguished professor hopes to impose on us.

Keen on Deane

The suggestion has been made that the time has arrived, on the crest of the Conservative Federal victory, to elect a new British Columbia Provincial leader. On Dec. 1, 1952, Deane Finlayson was elected our leader. The idol of the young Conservatives and the joy of the party stalwarts including Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Finlayson has fought for the future of the party both provincially and federally as was reflected in the recent victories in British Columbia.

We stand shoulder to shoulder behind the man who has carried the flag through the party's ill-fortune for the past six years and who will lead us to victory in the next provincial election.

LOOSE ENDS

Secret Details; the Case of the Lettuce and the Lady

PEOPLE frequently ask me how it is that in the early days of April I already have three dozen fine young lettuce plants growing happily on a cold northern slope. Until now I have always evaded this question or answered it with callous fabrications. For after all, lettuce is a private affair. But so many earnest persons have pressed me for an answer, the cost of food is so high and the vitamins of green vegetables are so essential to the public health that I am resolved at last to disclose my secret.

Hutchison

NOW, I know that you can get an answer of sorts by writing to the garden experts who explain the mysteries of gardening in the newspapers every day, and I have no complaint to make against these worthy public servants. I say only that their answers never go far enough.

It is not enough to say that lettuce seeds may be sown in the earth and will grow into a salad. Everybody knows that. But what about the earth? First you must have the earth before you can have the salad.

Hence, to acquire three dozen lettuce plants in April, you must acquire a large mortgage in your youth.

More than thirty years ago I acquired a mortgage of several thousand dollars. Though I didn't know it then, I was in the lettuce business. It has taken more than three decades to produce that little green row of seedlings yonder. Each is worth at least a hundred dollars. About $3,600 worth of salad is growing in that row. Do you wonder that I take it seriously?

THE mortgage and the land are only the first steps toward those household economies and low-cost living which enable the thrifty gardener to defy the general rise in prices. It will take ten years or so of intensive labor to make the soil ready for lettuce. A nation may be reformed, a society revolutionized and a world blown up, as the politicians assure us, in a matter of a few months or minutes. A serious project like lettuce takes time.

At the end of the first decade I was ready to put in the first seeds but, before doing so, reckoned up my investment to date. It included the price of the land, some thousands of dollars in land taxes, the purchase of a tractor, gasoline for the same and various payments for mechanical repairs, certain other tools and, calculated conservatively, 9,100 eight-hour days of labor which, at going wages were equal to quite a lot of lettuce. And I had received no wages.

THE soil was now in good tilth, relatively free of couch grass and crammed with so many chemical fertilizers that it might be expected to sprout a hydrogen bomb at least. So I planted it with lettuce seed and settled down to enjoy the benefits of cheap food and the healthy, vitamin-filled rural life.

Not wishing to discourage the reader or to quarrel with the worthy garden experts, I shall not record in detail the experience of the next dozen years or so. Suffice it to say that I had no lettuce, except that purchased in the stores and imported from California.

The slugs had lettuce on my land. The earwigs had lettuce. The weevils, June bugs, cutworms had it. The pheasants and quail gorged on it and swelled with vitamins. Even my neighbors somehow had lettuce.

BUT in all those twelve years I can remember harvesting about as many heads of lettuce and, to tell the truth, they were not nearly as good as those bought in the stores. They were withered on the outside and soft on the inside, like the head of the grower. I compelled my family to eat them, though, well disguised with oil and vinegar. I was determined to reduce the cost of living.

After about twenty years of experience I am bound to say that I was a little disenchanted with lettuce. I was suffering, perhaps, from what doctors call lettuce-fatigue, slug-shock and hardening of the vitamins. Indeed, I was almost ready to abandon lettuce altogether and go in for something simple like politics.

Then, at the very moment of despair, came the great discovery which I now impart to the public. I met a lady.

DO not leap to scandalous conclusions. My friendship with this lady was solely an affair of lettuce. It was a romance of vitamins.

This lady, besides her many other virtues, owned a small, well-heated greenhouse, and in it she grew lettuce plants throughout the cold winter. And in her Christian charity she noted my pitiable row of sickly seedlings and she brought me over three dozen large, fat, healthy lettuce-plants almost ready for the salad bowl. I had only to place them in the soil, watch them grow for a month or so and carry them triumphantly to my kitchen.

After thirty years I had mastered the mystery of lettuce. Therefore pay no attention to the garden experts. Observe that row of stalwart plants, the envy of the neighborhood, and find the right lady. That's all there is to it. Just find a lady with a greenhouse and a warm heart and you, too, can enjoy the low cost of living this spring.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

Memories of Vimy Ridge and a Good Man to Follow

Because this is the 41st anniversary of the Battle of Vimy Ridge I am writing today a tribute to the men who swept over the ridge in a storm of sleet and rain. It is written as a letter to my grandson.

DEAR DAVID: When you grow a little older you will find yourself picking out certain persons for hero-worship. Your Dad may be one of that select band; or a bus driver; a ship master or perhaps just an older boy who has some dexterity that you have not.

Well, this letter is about one of my small, select band of heroes—who in the 35 years I knew him remained secure in his niche.

He had a fine, strong, simple name—John MacGregor—that suited him exactly. He had a great square-built body and an open forthright manner. His birthplace was near Inverness which is in Scotland where the countryside is very much like our own rugged land, so that he was very much at home here.

Before he died John MacGregor had attained the rank of Lieut.-Colonel and was entitled to wear his country's highest honor—the Victoria Cross—in addition to the Distinguished Service Order, Military Cross and bar and that fine decoration for soldiers, the Distinguished Conduct Medal.

When I knew him first he was a sergeant in the 2nd CMR Battalion to which I had been sent as a very diffident and doubtful reinforcement. But in a short time I saw that there was a man's man, indeed, a brave and kindly soul capable of lifting the most timid of us to almost heroic proportions by his own magnificent example.

Now it was not as though John was an isolated example in the battalion for we numbered in our ranks some of the finest men to go to their country's defence in 1914-18. There were, for example, Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, also a Victoria Cross winner; Maj.-Gen. W. W. Foster, a great soldier, and our own imitable Lieut.-Col. George Chalmers

Johnston who led the battalion through its most glorious days.

You must not suppose, David, that all these brave men were high-ranking officers. The list of that gallant company would be endless, and scores won no official recognition.

The thing is, that of all those with whom I served, John MacGregor—naturally called him, "Jock"—stood out alone because I had much to do with him. As we stormed over the sleet-swept Vimy Ridge on Easter Monday, April 9, 1917, he was like a solid rock for stability. He carried us forward by his sheer strength and an example of his native courage.

And the thing I remember best about the great Scot was not his almost incredible courage but his kindness toward us lesser men; the decent things he would do when we had the "windup" when things were bad; the way he would look into the sky at dawn when he heard a lark sing.

It was good to hear his Scot's voice, calm and quiet, when one lay alone on an advanced listening post.

And perhaps more than anything else it was his astonishing singleness of purpose that brooked no argument.

To him, David, it was a proud and happy privilege to wear his sovereign's uniform in his country's defence.

Well, today this attitude will find many to deride it and many who—utterly incapable of understanding, absence of personal motive—will scorn and sneer at it.

With John MacGregor patriotism took on a new and richer meaning in which consideration of self was completely absent. It had nothing to do with lip service at patriot gatherings, nor with the pomp and circumstance which so often surrounds its image.

With him patriotism meant that he owed unquestioning service to his monarch and he paid homage to the Throne with utter simplicity because he recognized, even though he might never have consciously shaped the thought, that in so doing he was paying homage to himself and his comrades in the only way in which a decent man may do so.

Well, David, John MacGregor is no longer with us and the world is the poorer for the passing of such men because there passed away with him a little bit of that granite solidity of character that we so desperately need today.

ON EVERY TOPIC BUT SOCIAL CREDIT

Not Merely Sound But Also Endlessly Stimulating

By TONY EMERY

A FEW days ago a cut of Ezra Pound's handsome old head turned up in the news columns. The accompanying story sketched the information that Robert Frost had set in motion a legal process which may result in Pound's release from the Washington mental hospital in which he has spent the last 12 years.

Emery

Has done more for his fellow-poets than any dozen men since 1910, is not entirely forgotten by those whom he has helped.

What was Pound's crime? He made some foolish broadcasts for the Italians during the war. (I remember hearing one. "Pound speaks" . . . the nasal Midwest voice twanging in the headset of a camouflaged radio truck in a corner of a Tunisian farmyard.) Yet men who committed coldblooded murder in that same conflict have long since been released.

Why did he do it? That is not so easy to answer. Certainly a perceptible paranoia note is evident in the poems he wrote in the 'thirties, and there is no doubt that his interest in economic reform became ever more dangerously obsessive as the years went by.

He deceived himself into accepting Mussolini's words for deeds because Benito's theories were along the lines he wished to see adopted everywhere. He even hoped to convert the Russians to the gospels according to Douglas and Gesell.

On every other topic but Social Credit he was not only sane, but also eminently sound; not merely sound, but also endlessly stimulating.

His essays—Make It New, Polite Essays and The Spirit of Romance—are eye-openers for anyone interested in discovering European literature; he is a one-man university who has brought hundreds of novices their first real experience of the masterpieces that belong to us all as our birthright; a born teacher, a great teacher: one of that illustrious company that descends from Socrates to Whitehead and Russell and R. G. Collingwood.

Pound's ABC of Reading, a bible for many students of literature, bears on its first page a warning that might well be inscribed on every lecture-room and classroom wall: "Gloom and solemnity are entirely out of place in even the most rigorous study of an art originally intended to make glad the heart of man."

This wonderful book is packed with pungent aphorisms and salty observations; it hums with the electric energy that streamed from the dynamic Pound.

Of Pound's criticism T. S. Eliot has said that it is "almost the only contemporary writing on the art of poetry that a young poet can study with profit." Pound the translator of Chinese and Provencal, Italian and Anglo-Saxon and French poems has been commended to us, again by Eliot, as the greatest poet-translator of our time.

The tireless efforts of Pound the publicist and impresario on behalf of his fellow-writers are well-attested: without this aid Joyce would not have published The Portrait of an Artist, nor would he have received the pension that enabled him to write "Ulysses."

Eliot hawked Prufrock and other Poems in vain from 1911 to 1915. In that year he met Pound, who did not rest until the poems were published by The Egoist Press.

Eliot's The Waste Land as it stands today is the result of Pound's ruthless blue-pencilling in 1922, a critical process which reduced it by half of its length. W. B. Yeats, himself originally an influence on Pound's early work, lived to be influenced in his turn by his erstwhile admirer.

Of the three poetic masterpieces of this century, which I take to be Pound's Mauberley, Eliot's Waste Land and Yeats's Byzantium, the first is by Pound, the second is dedicated to him and owes much to his blunt and brilliant criticism, and the third bears many marks of his influence.

Since Mauberley, Ezra has been working on "a poem of some length," of which 95 cantos have so far appeared, ten of them as recently as 1956. In these uneven, difficult, occasionally perverse and irritating cantos is embedded some of the most memorable and moving poetry of the twentieth century, though one has to wade through much gibberish and some garbage to come at it.

If Pound is released, where will he go? Can America hold him? That unfortunate land has produced three literary giants in the last sixty years: of this outstanding trio Henry James took British nationality in 1915; Eliot became a British citizen in 1927; and Ezra Pound is officially insane.

Since Pound is the only writer of any repute to espouse the Social Credit cause, and since British Columbia is, evidently, the last stronghold of that movement, I suggest that Premier Bennett, in this centennial year, offer Ezra a home here and a pension for life. Let us make British Columbia a political asylum in every sense of the phrase.

Peace, Perfect Peace

SPRING fever seems to have come to the dear old Court House on the Square, and with it an unwelcome somnolence. Where a few days ago was hustle and bustle of Assizes, today is gazing thoughtfully out of windows at warm sunshine. Even the commencement of the April sittings of the Court of Appeal passes with no more than a ripple on the placid surface of the judicial pond. This is the time of year when the business in Judge's Chambers slackens off a bit. The proving of wills is pursued with a shade less than its customary zest; there is a certain playfulness in the serene atmosphere of the Supreme Court. One is apt to find, if one drops in of a morning at chambers time, a lawyer trying to talk a judge into stretching Marginal Rule seven hundred and something so that it will perform as it was never intended to. The lawyer feels his chances of success are slight, and the judge knows he has none at all; but a few minutes snatched from business to spin out a refined abstraction is a pleasure at this time of year, and so the game is played as far as it can decently go.

Such little exercises would be unthinkable during the stern wintertime; when the howls in the eave-troughs and the rain spatters angrily on the skylights. Then, the law is stern and rigid and snappish; it looks with impartial disfavor on all who come to weigh their causes in the scales of justice. Winter is the time when the Reasonable Man is king: a Reasonable Man gifted, as an eminent judge once remarked, with the agility of an acrobat and the foresight of a Hebrew prophet. Against his impeccable standards are we measured and found wanting, while the winds groan and the surly rain splashes.

But come April, and the Reasonable Man doffs his long (and probably itchy) winter woollies. Occasionally he smiles, as if to say "Even I can be reasonable, in season!" Law suits are settled, some of them quite amicably, and the litigants go home wondering what all the fuss was about.

There are daffodils in the offices, and stern Dame Justice hints she is a woman for all her sword and scales. Perhaps the blindfold slips a bit, and gives her a chance to see what's what with the weather; whatever it is, the blind goddess is occasionally seen to smile. For most of the year she insists upon infallibility, but in April one wonders if, perhaps... is it possible the old girl is human after all?

Which is why lawyers and judges at this time of year are inclined to linger, chopping logic in Chambers; why Bert Beaveridge ponders problems in astrophysics as he soars up and down in the Court House elevator (well he might, for the splendid old machine operates in defiance of every known law of nature); why Margaret Salt has her mind more on her tulip crop than on the Court of Appeal; and lastly, why the Court House Seagull has retired to a fortnight of amorous dalliance on Jimmy Chickens Island.

LONDON LETTER

No Best-Seller

LONDON—The book world... Having had a far from bright year last year, it looks as though British publishing is in for another this year.

Last year there was no book that showed any sign of being a real best-seller in the Cruel Sea mold, no book that set people agog as Lucky Jim had done and none of the country's established authors renewed his reputation with another big hit.

And this year a perusal of the spring number of the Bookseller would seem to indicate that nothing much exciting will be coming from England as regards books—unless, of course, some "surprise" book bursts forth upon the public.

Perusing the spring Bookseller takes quite a time, since this year it is the fabulous size of 858 pages, crammed literally with tens of thousands of write-ups of new books and publishers' announcements.

And what does one find? Big names make a thin list. There's Nevil Shute, for instance. His new one, The Rainbow and the Rose, is, according to his publishers, quite unlike the often controversial Shute and is mainly about flying, being the life story of a commercial pilot.

H. E. Bates says that for the time being he is giving up writing serious novels. His latest, The Darling Buds of May, is about a crazy family of junk dealers living in the south of England and having a lot of fun living a care-free existence. "From now on," he says, "I am H. E. Bates, very funny writer."

C. P. Snow adds another to his Lewis Eliot sequence. It's the sixth in the series and is called The Conscience of the Rich. But whether C. P. Snow rates inclusion among "big names," as far as Canadian readers are concerned, I wouldn't know. Here he has a terrific reputation—among the book critics. Personally I just can't read him.

Thriller writer Ian Fleming brings out the sixth James Bond novel, with excellent results such as The Year of the Lion behind him, has An End and a Beginning, which his publishers say "must establish him among the greatest of living novelists."

And that's about the lot from top English writers this year. Canadians getting into print here include adopted Canadian Brian Moore, whose latest The Feast of Lupercal, is getting high praise; William Kilbourn's life of William Lyon Mackenzie, The Firebrand, gets English publication in April.

Roloff Beny, described as "the young Canadian artist," has a lavish advertisement devoted to his book of photographs taken in the Mediterranean. The Thrones of Earth and Heaven, which at $11.75 each must be quite a production.

TORONTO (CP)—The CCF is to take a preliminary look at its clouded leadership picture Sunday and ponder strategy for its election-battered forces in the next Parliament.

The party's national executive will lay the groundwork for the national leadership convention at Montreal in July and may shed some light on the plans of the party's top chiefs, leader M. J. Coldwell and deputy-leader Stanley Knowles. Both lost their seats in the election.

LONDON (CP)—The Manchester Guardian, in a lengthy editorial comment on the threatened Canadian Pacific Railway dispute, says it will be "folly" in the long run to protest against the "pricks of modern developments" in railway operation.

"The fireman on freight trains which need no firing or stoking and which, unlike British locomotives, already carry a head-end trainman looking out on the driver's left, is a wasteful anachronism," says the paper. "Nothing the firemen's brotherhoods say or do can make him anything else."

Compulsory Farm Market Centre of Prices Inquiry

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
VANCOUVER (CP)—The impact of compulsory farm marketing schemes on consumer prices is to be given detailed scrutiny by the royal commission on price spreads.

As the commission's three-day Vancouver hearings wound up Friday night, it became increasingly evident that not all farmers favor the compulsory system of marketing, requiring that all their produce be sold through government-authorized boards.

One commission member said privately that it appeared there is a lot to be said for and against the system.

MORE TO BE HEARD

"We've heard a lot about the system in Vancouver. We probably will hear a lot more in other parts of Canada, especially in Ontario where the system is in widespread use."

Farmer H. J. Bose of Surrey, B.C., in defending compulsory marketing, maintained Friday that it was fully democratic and had led to reductions in marketing costs. Without orderly marketing, many growers would have gone into bankruptcy.

But farmer George Wyndlow of Ladysmith, B.C., maintained the scheme was too costly and was not in line with Canada's democratic system.

The board had policing powers, even the power to enter and search homes. It would be better for producers and consumers if voluntary co-operatives were developed, "instead of having policemen running all over the place, pinching everyone. It is too nonsensical."

In connection with potatoes, "thousands of pounds of good food" was thrown out by the board's decision not to market certain quality potatoes unless they conformed to certain shapes.

In earlier sittings, spokesmen for consumers and some independent farmers maintained compulsory marketing led to widening spreads between the price the producer gets for his product and the price the consumer pays.

Fruit grower Elvin Masuch maintained he received a mere pittance from the board for his fruit while consumers were charged high prices.

Peace, Perfect Peace

SPRING fever seems to have come to the dear old Court House on the Square, and with it an unwelcome somnolence. Where a few days ago was hustle and bustle of Assizes, today is gazing thoughtfully out of windows at warm sunshine. Even the commencement of the April sittings of the Court of Appeal passes with no more than a ripple on the placid surface of the judicial pond. This is the time of year when the business in Judge's Chambers slackens off a bit. The proving of wills is pursued with a shade less than its customary zest; there is a certain playfulness in the serene atmosphere of the Supreme Court. One is apt to find, if one drops in of a morning at chambers time, a lawyer trying to talk a judge into stretching Marginal Rule seven hundred and something so that it will perform as it was never intended to. The lawyer feels his chances of success are slight, and the judge knows he has none at all: but a few minutes snatched from business to spin out a refined abstraction is a pleasure at this time of year, and so the game is played as far as it can decently go.

Such little exercises would be unthinkable during the stern winter time, when the wind howls in the eave-troughs and the rain spatters angrily on the skylights. Then, the law is stern and rigid and snappish; it looks with impartial disfavor on all who come to weigh their causes in the scales of justice. Winter is the time when the Reasonable Man is king: a Reasonable Man gifted, as an eminent judge once remarked, with the agility of an acrobat and the foresight of a Hebrew prophet. Against his impeccable standards are we measured and found wanting, while the winds groan and the surly rain splashes.

But come April, and the Reasonable Man doffs his long (and probably itchy) winter woollies. Occasionally he smiles, as if to say "Even I can be reasonable, in season!" Law suits are settled, some of them quite amicably, and the litigants go home wondering what all the fuss was about.

There are daffodils in the offices, and stern Dame Justice hints she is a woman for all her sword and scales. Perhaps the blindfold slips a bit, and gives her a chance to see what's what with the weather; whatever it is, the blind goddess is occasionally seen to smile. For most of the year she insists upon infallibility, but in April one wonders if, perhaps, . . . is it possible the old girl is human after all?

Which is why lawyers and judges at this time of year are inclined to linger, chopping logic in Chambers; why Bert Beaveridge ponders problems in astrophysics as he soars up and down in the Court House elevator (well he might, for the splendid old machine operates in defiance of every known law of nature); why Margaret Salt has her mind more on her tulip crop than on the Court of Appeal; and lastly, why the Court House Seagull has retired to a fortnight of amorous dalliance on Jimmy Chickens Island.

RED STAR SEES LIGHT; GIVES BOTTLE THE BOOT

MOSCOW (AP)—A top soccer star, booted to the bush leagues for hitting the bottle more than the ball, apologized in the Soviet press today.

Edward Streltsov was bounced off the Soviet national soccer team early this year after the newspaper Komsomol Pravda ran an expose of favoritism and wild living in the top ranks of Soviet soccer.

In a letter to the paper's editor printed today, Streltsov said he now realized he had to "defend the high calling of Soviet sportsmen with honor." He admitted that Komsomol Pravda was right in putting the finger on him and several other comrades who were warned against drinking.

ANOTHER SLANT

By JIMMY BRESLIN

NEW YORK (NEA)—Ray Robinson hung onto the coat of the guy in front of him for support as he staggered out of a back door at Chicago Stadium. He had just beaten Carmen Basilio but he was 37 years old and the effort nearly ruined him.

At Sarasota, Fla., Ted Williams, 39, hobbled around the outfield during a Boston Red Sox workout, complaining about ankle and rib injuries and general old age.

At New York's Jamaica Race Track, Eddie Arcaro, 42, finished combing his hair, put on his coat and then walked quickly out of the jockeys' room. He had been on three mounts this day and felt, he said, fresh enough for a round of golf.

A definite conclusion has been drawn from these sights. If a man has a young son or two he has a clear duty.

STEVE BROOKS

Steve Brooks is 36 and Willie Shoemaker is 26. As for the others, you have Johnny Longden, 48, and in his 31st year as a rider; Arcaro, Ted Atkinson, 41; Johnny Adams, 43, and Ralph Neves, 40. They all started about 20 years ago and still have a future.

In no other segment of sports, except major league pitchers who do not work as often—nor make nearly as much money—do you find lengthy careers ever approaching that of a rider.

Sal Maglie of the Yankees is 41 and has been around for 20 years. Warren Spahn of Milwaukee is 37 and has played for 18 years. Williams and Enos Slaughter, the Yankee part-time outfielder, are in this class, too. Ted is 39 and in his 22nd year of baseball and Slaughter is 42 and in his 21st year.

But in any other sport, a 30-year-old is ancient and his bones, particularly if a football player, are held together with wire. Boxers lean toward catgut. Except for Archie Moore and Robinson, they go quickly.

The oldest active football players are Charley Conerly, 37, and Ben Agajanian, 39, of the New York Giants, and Lou Groza, 34, of the Cleveland Browns. But Agajanian is strictly a place kicker and Conerly admits being a T quarterback these days is equivalent to semi-retirement.

On the race track, a man is useful for a long time. Take most of your big riders—Hedley Woodhouse (38) or Eric Guerin (34) or Jack Westrope (40) and you find they have been around anywhere from 17 to 25 years and they still are in as much demand now as ever.

Arcaro, for example, rode more winners last year—283—than he ever did in a single season. "I've never felt better and I've never had more satisfaction out of the business so I take more mounts," he explained.

For a single year, a jockey of any stature has to make $75,000 for himself. An Arcaro or Bill Hartack is worth $250,000 and over. Which is more than a York Berra or Mickey Mantle pulls in. And when you examine the number of years the rider has in which to grab this cash the conclusions are inevitable.

Man caught feeding kids a full meal should be brought into court for criminal negligence. A boy can be rich someday if the old man brings him up small.

B.C. JUNIOR TOURNEY

Margo, Harvey Score Double Shuttle Wins

Victoria's former Canadian junior champion, Harvey Hurd, came away from the B.C. junior badminton championships in Kelowna Friday with two titles under his belt.

He was bettered only by Vancouver's youthful Carol Ashby, who picked up three crowns, taking both the girls' under-16 and under-18 singles and the girls' under-16 doubles.

Hurd took a gruelling 18-15, 9-15, 15-6 decision from Wayne MacDonnell, Vancouver, in the singles final. He and MacDonnell then teamed up in the boys' doubles to down Salmon Arm's Peter Drummond and Al Patterson, Vernon, 15-11, 15-10.

Hurd teamed with Judy Humber, also of Victoria, in the mixed doubles under-18, but fell 17-15, 15-7 to Lynne MacDougall, Kelowna, and Cliff Russell, Fort St. James.

MARGO GETS PAIR

Margo Izard, Victoria, also set herself a merry pace, gathering titles in the girls' under-14 singles, defeating teammate Judy Humber 11-7, 11-9, and the girls' under-14 doubles. In the doubles she teamed with Jean Shepherd, Armstrong, for a 15-5, 15-2 victory over Tanya Kinakin, Castlegar, and Eleanor Shannon, Rimond.

Carol Hayton and Jean Woolson formed the Victoria team that pushed Miss Ashby and Jennifer Burke to a 15-6, 15-9 score in the under-16 girls' doubles.

Miss Hayton and Wendy Cox were unsuccessful finalists in the under-18 girls' doubles, bowing to Miss MacDougall and Jackie Stinson, also of Kelowna, 15-6, 17-14. In the under-14 mixed doubles Victoria's Diana Godfrey teamed up with Roddy Gibson, Vernon, but fell to Miss Shepherd and Vernon's Ed Patterson, 15-2, 15-2.

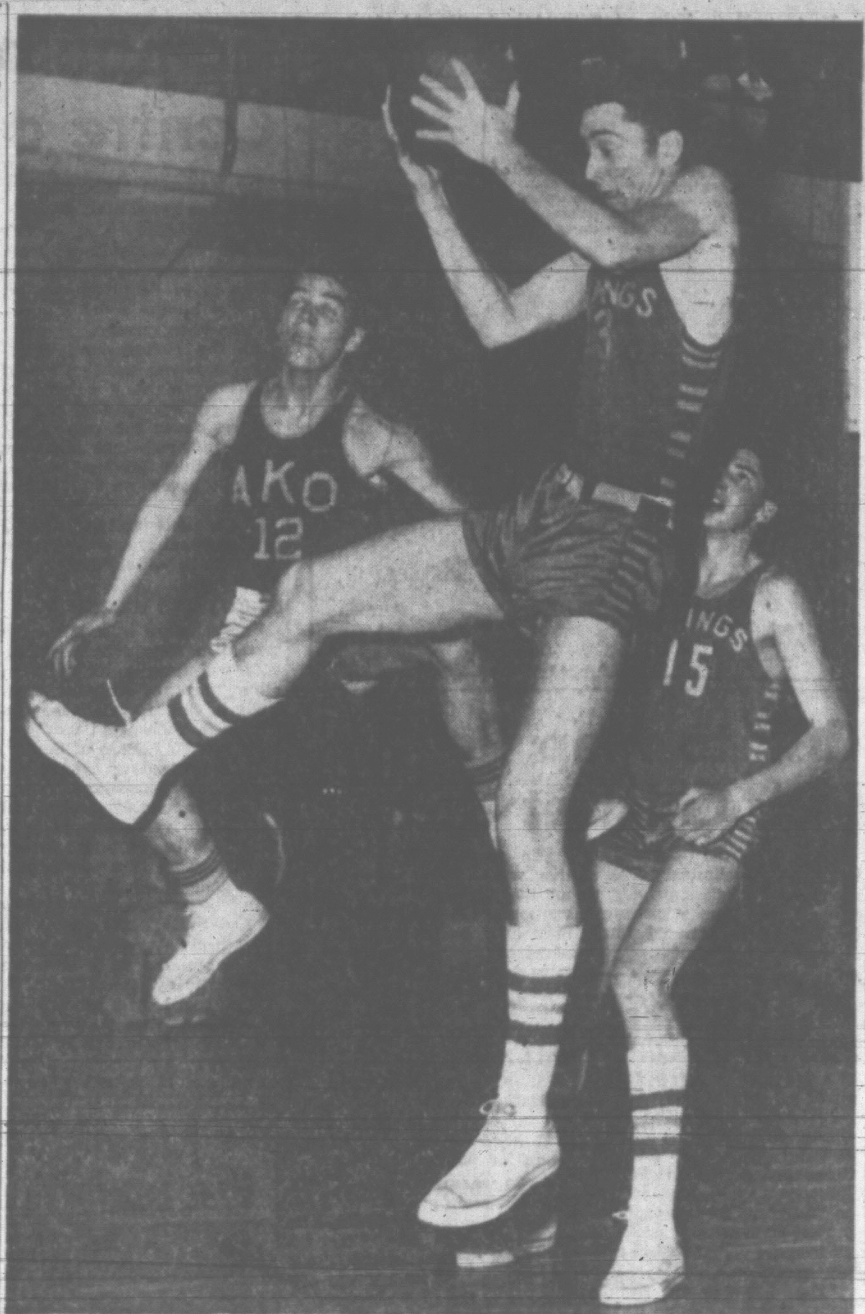

ON THE ALLEYS

It's getting around to that time of year again when leagues in Victoria's bowling circles start declaring champions and begin looking forward to their annual wind-up party and prize presentations.

Three leagues, at Gibson's Bowladrome did just that this week with Bon Cafe copping the Mixed Tenpin League title, James Bay Hotel taking the crown in the Women's Major League and Night Hawks winning out in the Mixed Fivepin League.

Wilbur Webb set the pace for the Bon Cafe win with his 351 (244) series, while Lolly Hughes came a close second at 339.

Warriors Took Long Time To Slice Canuck Margin

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg Warriors edged Vancouver Canucks 4-3 Friday night after almost three full periods of overtime in a semifinal game that set a Western Hockey League record for length.

Star rookie Art Stratton fired the winner at 15:19 of the third 20-minute overtime period as the Warriors out of the Vancouver lead in the best-of-seven series to 3-2.

The 5,045 fans littered the ice with programs and paper to mark the winning goal.

The remaining games of the series will be played in Vancouver starting Monday.

Calgary Stampede and Seattle Americans clash in Seattle tonight in the first game of their best-of-five semifinal. The Stampede eliminated Edmonton Flyers and Seattle beat New Westminster Royals to enter the series.

55 MINUTES OVERTIME

The mark of 55 minutes and 19 seconds of overtime was well above the old time of 31 minutes and 24 seconds set in a game between Saskatoon and Edmonton on March 31, 1952.

Besides Stratton, the Winnipeg marksmen were Howie Glover and Gordie Redhal. Rookie Orland Kurtenbach scored twice for Vancouver and defenceman Hugh Currie netted the other before being taken to hospital with an injury suffered in the second period.

Winnipeg took a 1-0 lead in the first period but it was tied 2-2 at the end of the second and 3-3 at the end of regulation time.

Glover beat Pelletier cleanly for the first goal of the game after Dick Lamoureux fired the puck to him through a scramble. Currie evened the count after 44 seconds of the second period with a shot that went wide of the net but caromed into the upper corner from Earl Ingarfield's skate.

Two minutes later Folk's shot rebounded off the stick of Ken Douglas and on to the stick of Kurtenbach, who slapped the puck into the net.

First United Whips Duncan

Victoria's First United bantam boys basketball entry, in the provincial knockout tournament currently being played at Alberni, turned in an impressive first-round performance Friday night to down Duncan, 49-22.

The win moves the Victoria team into the semi-finals of the event against Vancouver College this afternoon.

Sooke was the only other Island team to win its first round match, downing Nanaimo, while Vancouver College defeated hosting Alberni and Kerrisdale edged by Courtenay.

Frank Must Solve English Problems

Vikings Lead Windsor In Canadian Hoop Final

Victoria College 71, Windsor AKO 56

Frank Wansborough, his title-winning schedule knocked askew, needs to come up with a pair of answers before he can get his Windsor AKO crew back in the chase for the Canadian junior men's basketball crown.

The Cinderella club from the border city will be starting with two strikes when they tackle Victoria College Vikings at Victoria High School tonight unless they have discovered a way to keep Tom English under control and to prevent the western Canada champions from collecting a surplus of foul shots.

English, and gift tosses, made the difference at the Vic High court Friday night as the Vikings scrambled to a 71-56 victory in the opening game of the best-of-five Dominion final.

Actually, if the Alpha Kai Omega fraternity coach can point out a way to check English effectively, he should be well on the way to a solution for both problems.

Playing before about 550 fans, the chunky Viking guard turned in a standout two-way performance and wrecked the AKO hopes as he rattled in 27 points to set the scoring pace for both clubs.

With his speed deceptively masked by his smooth stand-up style of dribbling, English was continually gaining a half-step advantage in dashes around the right side.

And as he drove in on the basket, the easterners usually went for the ball and the result was that English fired 16 shots from the foul line. He missed only three times and his 13 one-pointers were exactly the margin between the Victoria total of 27 points from 37 gift tosses and the Windsor count of 14 from 27.

On first-game performances, Vikings appear a solid choice to nail down Victoria's first national junior hoop title, but the Fratmen have proved they have the ability to come from behind.

Given little chance to win the eastern title for a fourth time, especially after losing scoring star Tommy Newton to a farm club of baseball's Cleveland Indians, AKOs rallied from a 56-43 first-game defeat to edge Hamilton in a two-game, total-point series.

And they threatened briefly to pull Friday's chestnuts out of the fire after being down, 42-28, at half-time.

Checking the collegians all over the floor, AKOs climbed within seven points four minutes after the intermission and they were only eight back with less than three minutes remaining.

AKO Captain May Miss Game Tonight

Then AKO captain Ralph Parent, who had just scored his 13th point, injured his right hip in a scramble for a loose ball and was forced to leave the court.

Without their floor general, the weary Windsorites faltered and Vikings were able to coast the rest of the way.

Patterson was in considerable pain after the game and this morning Wansborough, who said the injury may be only a severe bruise, listed his captain a doubtful starter for tonight's tussle.

Adding to his woes was the recurrence of an old knee injury to Bucky Parent, the diminutive forward who was expected to spark the Windsor attack. Bucky was unable to get off the floor for his usually deadly southpaw jump shots and managed only seven points.

"The toughest one for a travelling club," said Wansborough. "We'll be a lot better Monday, but I had counted on a victory last night to keep us out of trouble in case we have a bad second game tonight."

"If Patterson can't play it'll be tougher, but now we have to try and figure a way to win tonight."

Big Bob Hanson, the best Windsor rebounder, topped the AKO scorers with 15 points while centre Bob Tomlinson followed English on the Viking list with 14 and Ken Brousseau added 11 points to the winning total.

Steady defensive play by Ken McCulloch and Ed Kowalyk kept the Vikings from dropping far behind in the opening exchanges and later in the opening half it was lanky Waldo Skillings and English who took over to get the college squad rolling out in front.

Centre Bob Tomlinson and English came through with timely baskets when AKOs threatened in the second session.

ART ON WAY OUT

Baltimore Orioles gave up on Art Houtteman's chance of staging a major league pitching comeback. Orioles are asking waivers on the righthander preparatory to giving him his unconditional release.

Times Open Fivepin Tourney Dates Set

2,493, while Bel Airs picked up the blue-chips with a first place in the consolation round.

Marg Beane set the Mixed League pace for the week with her 587 (222) series, followed by Jack Hobby at 553.

At 2,273, James Bay Hotel had a goodly lead on second place Thomson & Irving in the Women's League, but Drake Hotel was a hot third with a 2,245 score, just two pins behind the second-place finishers.

Erna Holness rolled a fine 549 to pace the League.

Whit Johnston was the big gun of the city's tenpin week with his 609 (205, 218) series in Gibson's Senior League. Behind him were ranked Charlie Marks 549, W. Norris 572, Bill Holness 546 (202), Bob Bystedt 592 (215), Nick Howard 562, Wilf Smith 561 (204), and Andy Hawkins 554 (213).

F. McClement led the Commercial League with 578 (230) ahead of Dick Tripp 545, Norm Gamble 561 (213), B. Brown 553 (216) and Ken Munn 541.

At Strathcona Bowling Alleys, Ron Wilson set a 579 (212) pace in the Senior Tenpin League, followed by Wilf Smith 553 and John Roper 548. In the Commercial League, Gordon Rawnsley had 543 and John Elves 536.

May Wallis paced the Night Hawks to the Mixed Fivepin League (3,167) championship, even though E. Smith set the league pace with a 786 series. Percy Riddle rolled the honors series of the fivepin week, hitting out at an 872 clip at the Capital City Bowling Alleys.

Other than that, the fivepin crop proved scant during the week with only Keith Todd's Esquimalt roll of 865 (370) coming close to the mark set.

Behind Riddle were Wes Vogler 791, Cy Waters 742, Gary Roskamp 780, Don Corbett 753, Bill Atkinson 770 (390) and Sam Smitherman 741 (303).

At Esquimalt John Middlemass rolled an 809 (300) series ahead of Geoff Worrall 792, Gary Roskamp 798 (306) and Bud Brock 750.

Esquimalt manager Larry Marshall is looking forward to a pair of heavy weekends April 26-27 and May 3-4, when his house will be home to the annual Victoria Times Vancouver Island open fivepin championships.

Teams, doubles and singles events will share the two-week spotlight with the teams rolling over the opening weekend and the doubles and singles going the final weekend.

After a bumper crop of entrants last year, Marshall is hoping to better the mark with this year's entry.

Side Trips Unusual In Ted's Tee Tours

Ted Colgate may be only a "weekend golfer" but as far as rivals in the Times Vancouver Island Open championships are concerned, the easy-going Colwood ace is a threat that must always be watched.

This once-a-week golfer, his rivals insist, is dynamite "from tee to green." In fact, you only need the fingers of one hand to count the number of other Victoria golfers who can march as straight-down-the-fairway as does Colgate.

A member of B.C.'s 1939 Willingdon Cup team, Colgate is one of three former Island Open champions who Sunday play their second-round matches in the race for The Daily Times trophy.

TED COLGATE

AT TIMES RACE

Glen May Aid Old Bike Rival

Of several meetings with Jim Davies, Glen Robbins best remembers the one in a 25-mile Canadian championship bicycle race before almost 3,000 fans at Beacon Hill 28 years ago.

Greater experience and his famous finishing sprint pulled the Vancouver ace home in front and Glen had to be satisfied with second place.

The former rivals are hoping to meet on a bike race course again June 7, and this time they plan to be working together. Davies, B.C. chairman of the Canadian Wheelman's Association, will be acting as chief referee for the Times Centennial Bicycle race—and hopes Robbins will also be able to keep an eye on the riders in the capacity of assistant referee.

However, it appears probable that Glen's duties as deputy chief with the Saanich fire department will keep him at his job June 7 and the meeting will again be delayed.

If he fails to catch up with his former foe, it will be nothing new for Robbins.

After losing out in his only bid for a Canadian title, Glen hoped to eventually avenge the defeat. But Davies joined the professional ranks and he never had the chance.

Although deprived of one of his targets, Robbins continued to carve out an impressive amateur cycling record and represented Canada in the 1932 Olympic Games at Los Angeles.

Riding the pursuit and road events for the Dominion squad, which also included Victoria riders Lew Rush and Stan Jackson, Glen finished 16th among the world's best amateurs in the 62 1/2-mile road race. He still remembers the winner's time—two hours and 38 minutes, an average of almost 24 miles per hour.

Setting Record Biggest Bike Thrill

A powerful rider who was at his best in distance grinds, Robbins once lapped the field on his way to victory in a 15-mile race around the one-mile Beacon Hill course. But his biggest cycling thrill came in an eight-mile road race which was once one of the city's annual bike-racing highlights.

Riding in "B" class, which limited riders to roadster-type bicycles and tires, Glen broke away from the field and smashed the course record, posting a time minutes better than the one recorded by the experienced "A" class riders, who were using full racing equipment.

When he moved into "A" class, Glen again pulled away from his rivals and finished all alone with another course record.

Provincial junior cycling champion when a skinny youngster of 16, Robbins was an all-round athlete who was among the best in the city in wrestling, lacrosse and soccer.

By many he is best remembered for his exploits in soccer, which he played until calling it quits two years ago at the age of 44. But of the 52 trophies he won in all sports, 32 were for cycling.

"If I could turn back the clock 20 years and shed 50 pounds, says the 240-pounder, 'I'd be training for the centennial race."

Tyro Race Limited to B.C. Residents

"We raced mostly for cups and medals. Imagine winning a trip to Europe or the world series. Those are the prizes of a lifetime."

The novice race on June 7 is a 40-mile chase from Duncan to Victoria that offers a trip to the 1958 baseball world series to the winner and at least nine other awards for other entrants.

Limited to B.C. residents who have no previous racing experience, the Tyro event will start at 8 a.m. Riders must use bicycles weighing at least 26 pounds and equipped with roadster type tires and gears not capable of more than three speeds.

Entrants in the open event—100-mile run from just north of Parksville to Victoria which is open to all amateur riders—may use any racing equipment.

First prize in that one is a trip, via Canadian Pacific Air Lines polar route, to the world amateur road cycling championships in Germany early in September and an attractive trophy. Also at stake will be 11 other awards.

"There are almost two months until June 7," Robbins said Friday. "That's enough time for any young fellow who keeps himself in reasonably good condition to get ready for the novice race. It's a wonderful opportunity for young riders."

If you're interested, entry forms may be obtained by calling at or writing the Times sports department before the entry deadline of May 25.

the seven matches carded. The scheduled eighth match to decide quarter-finalists was played earlier this week with Oak Bay's Laurie Carroll defeating youthful Roy Chappell of Gorge Vale.

Sunday's action over Colwood's narrow, 6,479 yards will open with the handicap competitors leading the way off the first tee at 9 a.m. Open matches start one hour later.

Winners play their quarter-final matches the following Sunday at Gorge Vale and the 36-hole semi-finals are billed for Uplands April 27.

But where 17-year-old Dalziel is concerned, Sunday's test is a big one. He must play a veteran who holds the Colwood course record of 65, five under par.

Colgate, who knocked off such prominent stars as Bob Fleming, Joe Pryke and Bill Morrison in his march to the Island's top golf prize in 1952, would like nothing better than to celebrate his birthday a few days earlier. He'll be 46 next Thursday.

CUP-HUNGRY PACKERS STRIKE ROUGHER ROAD

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—It was a bolt—or two—from the blue that struck Kelowna Packers Friday night and ruined their chances of a clean sweep of the western Canada final for the Allan Cup.

The bolts were reinforcements of a sort for Winnipeg Maroons. Two players on the regular team—Fred Dunsmore and Bill Johnson—earlier delayed by work, were flown in here Friday and provided a single goal each. That alone was enough to beat the Packers. The score: 5-1 for the Maroons, who still trail 2-1 in the best-of-seven series.

It was a sharp reverse from the earlier two games, when Kelowna had things all its own way in winning 5-0 and 4-1.

Mounties Meet Bees in Opener

SEATTLE (AP)—Only in baseball and bedtime stories could Stars become Bees, Seals grow into Giants and Angels swap their wings for the war-paint of Indians.

But these transformations will be official Tuesday when the Pacific Coast League—shaken up, dusted off and re-born—opens the 1958 season in four cities. The major league invasion of the west coast forced the reshuffle of the PCL.

The Salt Lake City Bees, who were Hollywood Stars a year ago, will put their new uniforms on display in Vancouver against the Mounties. The opener will be a single game under the lights at Capilano Stadium.

Spokane's Indians—the expatriated Angels from Los Angeles—debut in Seattle against the Rainiers in a day-night double bill.

A change in personnel as well as name makes Phoenix the only truly "brand new" team in the circuit. The franchise of the San Francisco Seals was lobbed into Arizona but the player contracts went to Minneapolis. The Giants of Phoenix make their bow at home Tuesday night against San Diego Padres.

Only at Portland, come Tuesday, will it seem like old times. There in another two-game day-nighter the Beavers will play host to Sacramento Solons. And Portland, with a seating capacity of more than 30,000 in Multnomah Stadium, is certain to draw the top crowd of opening day, 1958.

It was Coast League tradition in the past for the season to open in California cities, with the teams swinging north after a couple of weeks. This is the first time in many years that northwest fans have watched their teams jump directly from training camp to league play.

EILERS RULE HOOP ROOST

Title Should Ease Pains

VANCOUVER (CP)—Coach Fred Colleen's battered Vancouver Eilers left the floor Friday with 53 basketball games under their belt and the Canadian senior men's championship in their pocket.

Eilers, organized nine years ago, whipped Tillsonburg, Ont., Livingstons, 81-65 for the title which may mean a trip to Chile next fall for the world championships.

It was a rough season for the Vancouver club, which began last October when the Vancouver season opened. Despite injuries to big John McLeod and bigger John Forsythe the team kept rolling.

They edged the University of British Columbia for the B.C. title, swept past Edmonton Towne Hallers for the Western crown and then beat Tillsonburg three games to one in their best-of-five final.

Once again it was McLeod—former Olympic and University of B.C. hooper who suffered a severely sprained ankle earlier in the season—who led the Eilers. McLeod poured in 27 points, 22 coming in a roaring second half which saw Vancouver fight back from a 34-30 deficit.

Australian Peter Mullins conducted for 23. Marv Berge collected 16.

John McKibbin led the Livingstons with 18 points. Tillsonburg jumped into a 16-13 quarter lead and increased it to 34-30 at half-time. It was not until there were just 13 seconds remaining in the third quarter that Eilers went ahead—but then it was to stay.

Mullins got that one. Forsythe made it 48-45 before 20 seconds were gone in the final 10 minutes.

From there on it was all Vancouver.

Joan Crawford in Half-Hour Drama; Auto Races, Shuffleboard Sunday

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

There is little to brag about this weekend. Viewing ranges from the humdrum to the reasonably interesting, especially in the documentary or informative fields.

Tonight's shows are much the same as usual except it should be noted that Bob Hope is due to appear on Perry Como's program at 8 on Channel 4. Will Travel, Palatin goes to the side of a friend whose brother has just been murdered. Fisher get together on Club Oasis, billed for Channel 4 at 9. At 9:30 same channel, Joan Crawford will be seen in "Road to Edinburgh," the first in a weekly series of half-hour film dramas.

Sunday is more productive. At 2 in the afternoon auto races from Aurora will be seen on Channel 13. At 3, Channel 5, "The Fighting 69th," there will be a discussion on nuclear weapons, fallout and whether Russia intends to call off its atomic bomb tests. At 4, Channel 4, Wide World takes viewers to Washington, D.C., "The Headline City," to see where and how the laws are gathered.

At 6:30 Channel 3 presents "20th Century's 'F.D.R.:' Third Term to Pearl Harbor." At 8 Sunday night Dinah Shore presents another of her raving-gathering hour-long musical revues. Her guests will include Eve Arden, Eddie Bracken and the Mary Kaye Trio.

At 9:30 Channel 13 will present a TV first—the Washington State Cushion Shuffleboard Tourney.

Aid, finally, at 10 Channel 2 will interview Alexander Fecodovich Kerenyuk, who was the prime minister of Russia in the provisional government of 1917. Aid now to the capsule sketches of the weekend highlights.

TO BE INFLATED WHEN IN OUTER SPACE.

THEY'LL GO UP THIS YEAR

Satellites of Aluminum Foil

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Three aluminum foil satellites will be launched into outer space this year, announces their designer, William O'Sullivan of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

The largest is a 12-foot balloon which will gleam as brightly as the North Star and be visible to the naked eye at dusk and dawn. It will be the most easily spotted of the three.

Another is a 30-inch-diameter sphere made from 65 cents worth of the foil, while the third is a 12-foot-diameter "corner reflector" which will bounce back radar waves directly to the transmitting station providing a great potential aid to navigation while it is orbit.

Submerged U.S. Sub Fires Big Missile Successfully

WASHINGTON (UP) — The navy disclosed Friday that it had fired a full-scale model of its Polaris ballistic missile from a "pop up" launcher submerged in the Pacific off the California coast.

Rear-Admiral W. F. Raborn, director of the Polaris program, said the successful launching took place March 23. He called it a "distinct milestone" in development of the hydrogen-tipped missile which will be carried by atomic submarines.

The model unveiled was about 28 feet tall. Viewers estimated the warhead at the top of the bowling pin-shaped missile was about two feet in diameter and about three feet long.

The launcher was a canister of the type presumably to be installed in nuclear submarines. Raborn said the March 23 shot was the first of its kind ever attempted, although the Germans in the Second World War made some practice shots with small rockets lashed on the deck of a submerged submarine.

The admiral also revealed that the navy expected "in the not too distant future" to test its Polaris from the deck of the observation island, a modified merchant ship.

1,500-MILE RANGE He said that the submarines being designed to carry the Polaris, starting in 1960, would be capable later of firing missiles with more than 1,500 miles range and will have a useful life of 15 to 20 years.

LOGGING FIRMS HIT

Booming Ground Tax Assessment to Soar

NANAIMO—Assessed values of booming ground and water lot leases held by most of the major logging and lumber companies in the province appear due for a sharp increase.

In 1957 the properties were reassessed as a phase of the provincial equalization of assessment program, and after three years of evaluation research by the finance and lands and forests departments.

Assessments in most cases were increased by 50 per cent, and it is expected that after revisions they will be at least 25 to 30 per cent higher than last year.

All 13 companies concerned took their appeals to a court of revision sitting here, and then to an assessment appeal board, also convened here. De-

PORT ALBERNI — Six-year-old Cheryl Teichman, who suffered severe head injuries Friday when she ran in front of a car, was reported by West Coast General Hospital officials today as in "fairly good" condition.

According to reports, she ran from behind a parked car into the path of an oncoming car driven by Roy Malcolm Carmichael of Campbell River. The accident occurred on Tebo Avenue.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

British Analysis

COWICHAN LEADER—The quiet, persistent manner in which the United Kingdom Information Office is keeping Canadian and other Commonwealth news sources informed of what British politicians are doing and thinking gives the lie to the oft-expressed belief that the British fall down when it comes to footing their own horn. The note is audible always though the instrument be muted and blown softly on occasion.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's recent Commonwealth tour is reported fully in a recent release from the UKJO. In it Mr. Macmillan underlines some of the intangible strength of the British way of life which places such a high value on human freedom and dignity.

Mr. Macmillan sees the present age as cast "in the midst of the greatest struggle of ideas of which I know no practical parallel in history... largely a struggle of the spirit." We in the Commonwealth can, and will, outlive it and for many centuries, if we have faith, be the living defence of the fundamental things in life which we value most far more than territory or wealth or even power—justice and truth and freedom.

Service Wanted

COMOX DISTRICT FREE PRESS—Perhaps, now that the B.C. Telephone Co. has applied to increase its rates to bring in an additional $6,400,000, it will spare a few dollars to provide a decent phone book service here.

Despite the amount of business done between here and Campbell River, the northern village is not included in the local telephone book as it once was.

The company no doubt has the excuse that the Campbell River exchange is operated by a different company. What if it is? It wouldn't be hard to come to some arrangement whereby the two areas could be listed in the same book. To offer additional cost as the excuse wouldn't help, we feel. To reinstate this little extra service might help to mitigate the annoyance subscribers are going to feel about the proposed increase in rates.

Valiant Lady

SIDNEY REVIEW—The valiant little Lady Rose is on her way out. Her imminent departure was foreshadowed on Monday when her successor took to the water for the first time at the Vancouver shipyards responsible for her construction. A large group of islanders, jubilant at the sight of their new venture, watched the rather faster ferry vessel slide smoothly into the water.

The new vessel represents not only the conclusion of a long dream but the realization of a concrete move by many residents who have expressed their confidence in the venture by the investment of their capital in the sponsoring company.

Inauguration of the Island Princess ferry schedule cannot fail to enhance the popularity of the islands as a tourist centre. This consciousness of the tourist trade has already gained an impetus from the announcement of its approaching operation and islanders are even now turning their minds to the encouragement of a greater trade during the summer months.

Fire Improvement District to Meet

SIDNEY—First meeting of North Saanich Fire Improvement District since its formation a year ago will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. at North Saanich High School.

Trustee Brig. P. Earnshaw and auditor Alex Smith will seek re-election, and R. M. Adamson will seek election to the seat to be vacated by J. J. Woods.

Dairymen to Vote On Board, April 26

Results of a vote among Vancouver Island milk producers on whether the Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association should become the agency through which all Island-produced milk is to be delivered or sold—will be announced on April 26.

Voting already is under way. An affirmative vote, almost certain since 90 per cent of the 299 producers on the Island are VIDA members, will mean the VIDA will set prices to distributors. No increase is anticipated. The scheme followed removal by the B.C. Milk Board of an

Lake Cowichan Drama Club Takes Honors at Festival

NANAIMO—Lake Cowichan Drama Club made almost a clean sweep of top awards in the Central Vancouver Island Festival that opened here Wednesday.

Adrian Pecknold and Betty Lincoln, who played the male and female leads in the club's presentation of "Full Circle," were chosen by adjudicator Peter Ajello as best actor and actress respectively.

Island Youth Remanded To Thursday

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 17-year-old Port Alberni youth, charged with armed robbery in the holdup Thursday of a downtown Vancouver bank, appeared in juvenile court Friday.

Magistrate W. H. S. Dixon adjourned the hearing until next Thursday.

Police said the youth arrived here only half an hour before the $2,400 holdup at a branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

The lives of Const. Doug Booth and bank employees were threatened before the youth was captured after a wild struggle on a downtown street.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By MICHAEL ROSE and ROBIN CLARKE

Question: Some experts say the current economic slump is being sharpened by the consumer's reluctance to buy. Have you observed this trend among your acquaintances?

Eveline Rabey, 887 Brett Ave. "My spending habits are just the same as they have always been and the same goes for my friends as far as I can see. If there was a decrease in wages, I guess I'd have to cut down, but meanwhile I think money is to spend so I spend it."

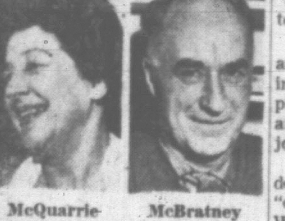

Gito Kaur, 520 Whiteside St. "I don't ever think much about a country-wide slump affecting me particularly. I am spending a little more now than before for no special reason that I can think of."

Bill Whaley, 350 Burnside Rd. "Well, I have just opened up a small business myself so you can see I am not too worried about the recession. There was a big upsurge in credit buying, but now there is a bit of a recession, people are spending less."

Don Buile, 1310-Burleigh Crescent. "I don't think there has been any change in my habits as far as spending goes in the past six months or so. If I need something and I've got the money to buy it, I buy it."

Mrs. Marge McQuarrie, 2659 Douglas Street. "I have always been in the habit of saving all I can and I haven't changed that recently. I don't spend an awful lot as it is, but if I figure I've got to spend it, I do."

Fred McBratney, 978 Ambassador Avenue. "I am spending a lot less nowadays because I haven't got as much to spend. I think this may be partly due to the recession. Local conditions are mainly responsible for my cutting down."

TWO-DAY YOUTH PROGRAM

Baptist young people will come from as far north as Parksville to attend a program of music and testimony in Central Baptist Church next Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m.

The program will be conducted by Rev. J. H. Pickford, B.A., B.Th., dean of Northwest Baptist Bible College, Port Coquitlam, and a group of his students.

Pastor of Central Baptist, Dr. J. B. Rowell was first dean of the college.

A meeting of the Victoria and district Cornish Association will be held tonight at 8 at 2177 Smythe Street.

Fate of Cheryl Hinges On Next Court Hearing

'Better Off In Home For Girls?'

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Lana Turner was in danger of losing her daughter Cheryl today even though her shattering performance on the witness stand won the girl a "justifiable homicide" verdict at an inquest on the knife-slaying of Johnny Stompanato.

A juvenile court must determine 14-year-old Cheryl's future at a hearing set for April 24, at which time Lana is expected to make another off-screen appearance.

Judge Allen T. Lynch had two possible courses:

1. He could turn Cheryl over to authorities for criminal prosecution since the inquest's verdict was not an order to the court.

2. He could rule Cheryl a ward of the court and determine whether the girl should be in custody of Lana or Stephen Crane, the girl's father, or be sent to a detention home or some religious or private home for girls.

District Attorney William B. McKesson said Friday night he was not in favor of prosecuting Cheryl after hearing what had been disclosed at the inquest. If he does not prosecute, Cheryl will go free and probably return to Lana.

But McKesson said it was his own opinion that Cheryl would be better off in a good home for girls. He indicated he did not think she should be in the custody of Lana, her grandmother or Crane.

Crane said he hoped McKesson "doesn't really feel" that neither he nor Lana should have Cheryl.

"There is nothing more in the world I would like more than to have custody of my baby," he said. "But I don't want it to sound as if I don't think her mother should have custody. It puts me in a tough spot."

Asked about a possible reconciliation with Lana, Crane said: "Every time Lana has broken up with someone over the last seven years, people start talking about a reconciliation. A lot has happened since we parted."

But the blonde actress was sure to make a fight for her daughter and if it is anything like the one she made on the witness stand Friday to exonerate Cheryl, it will be staggering.

EX-HUSBAND of Lana Turner and father of her daughter Cheryl testified that the girl phoned him at his restaurant and said: "Something terrible has happened."

The jury ruled Cheryl's stabbing of Stompanato was justifiable homicide. (AP Wirephoto).

TOP PERFORMANCE Miss Turner has never given a dramatic performance on the screen nearing the one when she described Stompanato's threats to mutilate her. Cheryl's sudden appearance at the door and the moment when the knife was plunged in so swiftly she could not see the blade.

The 38-year-old Lana cried softly through much of her testimony. Her voice faltered and quaked but it never lost its clear enunciation.

Lana left the court before the verdict was returned and she collapsed in the arms of her attorney, Jerry Giesler, when the news was telephoned. She was immediately put to bed. She had said earlier she intends to visit Cheryl at the juvenile hall on Sunday.

REFUSING to testify at the Stompanato inquest was former gambler Mickey Cohen. First witness called, he balked at giving testimony for fear that if he testified he might be accused of the slaying of his one-time friend. (AP Wirephoto).

VANCOUVER (CP)—Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. and subsidiaries report a net profit of $312,685 last year, $92,364 more than the 1956 figure.

President G. W. McPherson said four additional helicopters have been purchased, bringing the total number in operation across Canada to 52.

Income from helicopter and aircraft operations increased to $2,882,115 in 1957 from $1,942,341 in 1956.

RUSS CHARGES UNFAIR WORK FOR FAIR SEX

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet writer suggested today that too many Russian women are doing men's work and vice versa.

Writing in the Literary Gazette, Vladimir Nemtsov recommended that the labor protection division of Soviet trade unions determine whether labor managers are misusing female labor.

In many cases, Nemtsov said, women are assigned to such heavy jobs as loading bricks, railway ties and rails while men are working in the kitchens.

U.K. Labor Wins 55 Seats From Tories

LONDON (Reuters)—The Labor party today claimed a net gain of 55 seats in the first 23 counties to vote in Britain's elections for local councils.

Final results of the opening phase of the month-long polling Thursday and Friday showed Labor gained two seats in each of the three counties of Denbighshire, Oxfordshire and Shropshire.

Full figures issued by the Conservative party for the first 19 county polls decided Thursday showed that the Conservatives and their allies held 409 seats, a net loss of 27.

Independents held 284 seats, a net loss of two, the Liberals 20 seats; a net gain of one, and the Labor party 229 seats, a net gain of 28.

A second batch of 20 counties voted today to elect their local councillors for the next three years.

The national municipal elections, involving a total turnover of more than 25,000 seats, are being fought mainly on the issue of high living costs, believed cause of the Conservative government's slump in popularity over the last year.

Costly Centennial Balloon Splits While Being Pumped

A centennial balloon demonstration Friday afternoon never got off the ground.

A trial run of blowing up two of the 64 seven-foot-diameter balloons to be suspended across downtown streets this month was given up after hours of delay, a tangle with customs and three broken balloon bladders.

Supervisors of the Greater Victoria Centennial Committee project maintained stiff upper lips after the fizzle, determined to try again next week.

Plans had called for inflating two balloons and suspending them across Douglas in front of city hall, from nylon cables stretched between power poles.

Purpose was to determine the best technique of putting up the remaining balloons.

Originally scheduled to start at 1:30 p.m., the experiment finally was called off at 3:45 p.m.

UNFORTUNATE START The project was dogged from the start.

A mixup in tentative customs clearance—the federal department is demanding $2,000 duty for the balloons bought at a U.K. auction—resulted in an hour's delay.

The balloons were finally shepherded into the city weigh scales lot by Ald. J. D. Proudfoot, committee secretary, after he posted a bond to get them out of hook.

A fire station compressor was called into play to blow up one of the canvas balloons.

That was given up after half an hour when it became obvious the machine's 40-pound pressure was inadequate.

A 15-minute break was called while a 300-pound pressure city works compressor was yanked off a street job for the rescue.

SPLIT BLADDER Within seconds of being hooked up, it split the first rubberized plastic bladder.

Attacking the job more gingerly, four workmen found that working slowly allowed as much air to escape as went in.

Two more broken bladders later, the whole project was given up. The bladders were to be examined for defects before a second attempt is made.

Penny Mines Hold Market Interest

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Canadian stock market investors, with little opportunity to enthuse about "blue chip" stocks, this week turned their attention to low-priced speculative mining issues.

The end result was a domination by the penny mines of trading at Toronto, the first such occurrence in more than a year.

The five most active stocks—Naraglo, Zennac, Galtwin, Headway and Starratt—had a combined volume of 3,288,056 shares at Toronto, or more than one-quarter of the entire 11,618,000 shares traded during the week. During the previous week, when the market was closed for Good Friday, sales totalled 7,211,000.

Meanwhile the rest of the market drifted downward in sluggish trading with caution the first thought by most investors. Canadian markets followed closely the pattern set by Wall Street although the decline in Canada was not as severe as the one in New York.

Insurance stocks were exceptions to the rule. Confederation Life led the winners with a gain of $10.37, to $157.37. Canada Life was up $5 to $165 and Imperial Life added $3 to $78.

Business news continued to have a bearish tinge and that led to cautious trading both in Canada and New York.

Index losses at Toronto: Industrials, 3.03 to $420.19; golds, 70 to $7.80; base metals, 1.43 to $48.59; western oils, 1.94 to $12.17.

Safeway Earnings Set Record

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sales and earnings of Canada Safeway Ltd. reached all-time highs in 1957, president Walter J. Kraft reported Friday. Net income was $5,680,047, up from $4,865,598 in 1956, and sales increased to $214,752,817, from $189,042,874.

Mr. Kraft said the company had 170 retail grocery stores in operation at Dec. 31, including 18 new ones. Four older stores up from 1956, and were closed during the year.

Prokofiev's Idiom Easily Understood

By HUMPHRY DAVY

If popular opinion was sought to decide who are the favorite contemporary composers today, George Prokofiev would certainly be high up on the list. This is borne out by the increasing demand for his works since his death in Russia in 1953.

Prokofiev's popularity is largely due to his works being neither reactionary nor extremely futuristic. He can be understood. This is especially so with regard to his works written for piano and orchestra or violin concertos.

He was a prolific composer as his opus numbers attest. His concertos total eight, five for piano, two for violin and one for cello.

Davy ment by New York Philharmonic under direction of Dimitri Mitropoulos and Leonard Bernstein.

"Callas at La Scala—her great opera revivals" (Angel 35304), is a record which should prove popular with opera-lovers. The Italian artist sings selections from Cherubini's Medea, Spontini's La Vestale, and Bellini's I Puritani and La Sonnambula. She is accompanied by the orchestra and chorus of La Scala.

Personally, I prefer to hear Maria Callas in a complete opera. It is the only way to appreciate fully the art and personality of this great singer. Her recorded performances in Il Traviatore and Tosca are unrivalled.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Religious Art Reflection Of Motive and Attitude

"In holding, as I do, that there is such a thing as religious art distinct from other forms of art, I recognize that I run counter to the fashionable aesthetic doctrines of the moment. But, as the reader will discover... I hold that the true character of a work of art is determined at bottom by the artist's attitude and motives, and when that attitude and motive are religious the art produced seems to me to have for that reason a character of its own."

Ever since I saw the memorial exhibition of works by Katherine McEwen at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria I have been trying to assess the reason why such a brilliant painter as she was should have lived her final years in comparative obscurity.

The answer is perhaps to be found in the above words written by R. H. Wilenski in 1927, quoted from the preface to his book: The Modern Movement in Art.

(The book, a "classic" for students and connoisseurs, has just been re-issued in England, but I have quoted from the original preface.)

And, of course, I am not in any way decrying Katherine McEwen's reputation as an artist or personality; I am merely using Mr. Wilenski to underline how ominous and persistently short-sighted "fashionable aesthetic doctrines of the moment" can be.

I only wish Mr. Wilenski had written a guide for critics when reviewing memorial exhibitions. In my experience such exhibitions always find me asking myself the simple question, "Why didn't I know about this?" Or, in this particular instance, "Why didn't somebody drag me round to visit Katherine McEwen's studio?" I am sure a number of Victorians were asking themselves the same questions.

But, then, memorial exhibitions are like that.

In addition to several fine landscapes and drawings, Katherine McEwen's masterpiece was, without doubt, her series of Chancel frescoes for Christ Church, Cranbrook, Bloomfield Hills, Michigan. In this exhibition one sees them only in photographs; but what a breathtaking and spiritual revelation they must be—and how very much against the fashion at the time when they were painted!

Pictorial Postures

Not today, of course. People have at last come to their senses insofar as they recognize that the religious painter is determined by attitude and motives often far more compelling than the pictorial postures of those who have never given religion much thought, one way or the other.

This does not mean that an abstractionist is necessarily an atheist. It is fairer to say that the very nature of non-objective and action painting precludes religious expression. It is why religious painters are traditionalist in style.

Nor does it follow that because one is religious in attitude one is a good painter. All of us have seen religious paintings of crass mediocrity. And here again we return to R. H. Wilenski's "fashionable aesthetic doctrines of the moment." Even in religious works of art there is at present an increased tendency to regard religious art as fashionable.

On April 1 there opened in London an exhibition devoted to Christian Vision, which included works by Sutherland, Roualt, Bernard Buffet, John Piper, Sir Matthew Smith, Edward Burra. In Paris there are now on view seven huge compositions by Bernard Buffet based on the vision of Joan of Arc.

The Whitworth Art Gallery, Manchester, is displaying a full-scale exhibition of ecclesiastical art, ranging in subject from mediaeval manuscript to contemporary sculpture by Henry Moore.

The 1958 Edinburgh Festival Exhibition at the Royal Scottish Museum will be devoted to Byzantine Art, and will include church treasures from the Hermitage Museum, Moscow, and from Belgium, Cyprus, France, Holland and Italy.

There have been similar religious exhibitions of recent years and others are being planned; but as a final point it is worth noting that Sir Kenneth Clark in his series of TV films with the theme is Art Necessary?, and now being viewed in England, has chosen Art and Religion as one of the subjects for discussion.

Is this an indication that religion is "fashionable"? Is there a Billy Graham roaming the art world?

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

Effect of Barracks Life Theme of Fine First Novel

One of the most potent reading capsules I have swallowed this year comes in a most interesting first novel by a young American, Dennis Murphy. Mr. Murphy is 25 years old. He belongs to that generation of U.S. younger citizens who have been subjected to the Draft and his reactions to service life and what it can do to a man have been put to excellent use in his novel which is called The Sergeant.

The key situation around which the action revolves in this book is the strange attraction which a veteran, permanent force type, master-sergeant develops for a clean-cut young man who is serving his draft in a U.S. petroleum dump in post-war France. He is the only man in his company who seems to be able to ride above the debilitating effect of service life. All the subsidiary characters, in some way or other have become indifferent to life, but this young man has made friends with the French, has fallen in love, and is savoring a wonderful experience.

Then along comes the sergeant, a man whose service career has so warped him that he is impervious to all values except those which authority can give. When he finds himself emotionally attracted to the young man he has no experience to tell him what to do. His reaction is to gain authority over the one he loves. This he proceeds to try to do, becoming almost sadistic in the process.

The young man is half repelled, half fascinated by this display of ruthless power. His life loses its savor and his spirit is enthralled.

At the climax, through an effort which is part physical and part mental, he engages the sergeant in mortal combat and frees himself from this strange domination.

FINE CRAFTSMAN

This is not another of the now fairly frequent novels about homosexuality. The sergeant's attraction for the boy is only incidental, a motive force for the story which concentrates on the effects of barracks life rather than on the larger problem of the human psyche.

Within these stringent limitations, the author displays considerable wisdom but what makes this first novel so striking is not so much what the author has to say but how he says it.

Dennis Murphy is a magnificent craftsman. Already he has developed a lean kind of prose which represents a very high level of technical competence. This is a book to read and remember by a young author who

The concert will be held at Victoria High School. Time, 8 p.m.

'YEOMEN' BEARDS FOR BUDGET

Not all beards in Victoria are being grown for B.C. Centennial competition. At least two have sprouted among the Gilbert and Sullivan Society cast of "Yeoman of the Guard" for quite other reasons.

Chorus member Frank Brown, who doubles as stage manager, and Tower Warden Charles Ozard, declare they are growing their own to ease the strain on the show's make-up budget.

The do-it-yourselfers are also taking pity on make-up artists who will have at least a round dozen beards to put on cast members each of the three performances.

"Yeoman of the Guard" plays May 5, 6 and 7 at the Royal Theatre. Tickets are available now from members and reservations can be made at the Symphony box office in Eaton's music centre.

Stars Strike Gold In TV Commercials

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ever wonder why movie stars make the pitch for commercial products on television?

If so, Eva Gabor has the answer:

"The money was so good. I couldn't pass it up. I could work a year on the stage and not earn as much as I did for a one-minute commercial."

This gives you an indication of the gold to be found in celebrity testimonials. Eva's case is an extreme example.

Last week she co-starred with Noel Coward in a Saturday matinee of Present Laughter here. She hopped a plane for New York, rested Sunday to be fresh for shooting. She spent all day Monday shooting a one-minute soap ad, flew back here that night and was on stage again Tuesday.

PAID ROYALLY

You can be sure that Eva is being paid royally to so disrupt her life. She wouldn't say how much, but it is obvious that the whole thing was a big production.

"When I got to the studio there was a big crew waiting for me," she said. "They had a big selection of lovely gowns cut down to here, but somehow it didn't seem right for me to be wearing one in the kitchen. I settled for my dressing robe."

The morning's work was terrible, I got everything right but the name of the product. Finally, we had to quit for lunch and I worked until 5 before I got it right."

She said that exposure from such commercials is good publicity—if not overdone. She has done only one other—a cigarette ad "which I did because I needed some extra cash to finish a building I was putting up."

NOT EASY

Commercials are not as easy as they seem, she added.

"Stars like Arthur Godfrey and Art Linkletter are good for them because they can be natural," she said. "But others have to stick exactly to the advertisers' words; they're very particular about getting the message across."

Besides getting the initial salary, actors who make the product pitch get a payment every time the commercial appears on TV. This can amount to thousands of dollars for one day's work.

Edgar Peterson, producer of the "Climax" TV show, will play a TV producer on a "Mr. Adams and Eve" show, the first time he's acted since 1938 when he was in a stock company production of "Yellow Jack" in Washington, D.C. A new dance, the Debutante Waltz, is unveiled in MGM's "Reluctant Debutante" and is described as a rock 'n' roll version of the waltz in three-four beat but on bongo drums.

THE SOUNDING BOARD

Industrious Actors, Musicians Have Stake in Canada's Future

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Reading between the lines of a Victoria girl's letter recently, suggested comparisons and invited a conclusion.

Comparisons were made with books I had been reading, both autobiographical and fictional, concerning the professional entertainment worlds of New York and London.

These books—practical and unmythical by the haze of an artificial glamor—represent those worlds as overgrown jungles in which the unrelenting fight for survival never ends.

Visions of an ecstatic life devoid of dreary routine dissolve abruptly under a cold rain of hard facts.

No one, we discover, works harder, has to be more constantly on his toes, has a more strenuous routine and less job security than the average moderately successful entertainer, whether actor or musician.

Let me stress that word "average." It takes in a big proportion of men and women in the field. But not the biggest, by any means. Those described as "struggling," the hand-to-mouthers, are in the majority by quite a bit.

The minority? You guessed it; those fortunate few whose combination of talent, personality and determination consorted with opportunity and a public trend to carry them to the top of the pyramid.

In fact architecture of the professional theatre world in main centres is no different from that of the so-called mundane world of ordinary citizens, proportionately speaking.

CANADIAN CITY

The top 10 are wading in gold up to the neck and the bottom 10 billion are struggling in debt up to the neck.

But to get back to this letter. As I say, reading between the lines brought certain conclusions—possibly—erroneous—but somehow I don't think so. There is definitely an impression that an actor or musician working in a major Canadian city is happier, suffers fewer tensions and gains more in satisfaction if not in big money than his fellows in larger centres.

His world has not yet become a tooth-and-claw jungle; it is a place where something important, new and vigorous is being built. He is a part of a fresh, vital stream of ideas and creativity—in fact, he is one of a band of nation-builders.

Surely he has his frustrations, his despair, disappointments and anxieties. But after all, only the completely passive and unimaginative can avoid such moments.

TWO VICTORIANS

The city is Toronto; the letter from former Victorian Pamela Terry who is wife of former Victoria musician John Beckwith. It was written to her husband's mother, Mrs. H. A. Beckwith of 1149 Oliver Street.

It told of actress-director Pamela's full life with the University of All Nations Dramatic Club, husband John's burgeoning career, plus home and three children.

It indicated an unending hum of activity, not only for the young Beckwiths but for all their kind as it revealed John's activity in the Canadian League of Composers, of which he is a noted producing member—his lecturing, radio programming, critical and analytical writing and teaching.

Incidentally, for those who remember Pamela as a promising young Victoria College actress a few years ago, it will be and support the Victoria Choral Society in its presentation April 22, of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" and Vaughan Williams' "Festival Te Deum."

With Graham Steed welding the baton, there will be a string ensemble under leadership of Clifford Evans, Victoria Symphony concert master, while Richard Proudman, organist and choirmaster of St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, will be at the console of the Metropolitan Church organ.

Chamber Week Aims At Membership Boost

Next week is Chamber of Commerce Week in Victoria, and by next Saturday the 95-year-old Chamber hopes to have a total membership exceeding 1,100.

Since its inception in 1863, the Chamber has grown from a mere handful of city merchants to a total strength of 720, and it has an enviable record of service to the community.

"We want to raise our membership by at least 50 per cent during the coming week," says Chamber president H. R. Stephen.

As a means to this end, the Chamber is offering half rates to new members enrolled during Chamber of Commerce Week.

"We hope local businessmen will take advantage of this opportunity to join in a united effort to improve our city for all concerned," said Mr. Stephen.

Centennial Slogan

For its membership drive, the Chamber has adopted the slogan:

"A century to celebrate—a future to plan—good citizenship, good business, good government."

During the coming week an army of 110 canvassers will approach every potential new member throughout the city equipped with special kits and membership forms.

Members can also be enrolled by telephoning 3-7191.

Special emphasis will be laid on the group health, accident and life insurance plan offered by the Chamber. This plan, initiated in 1954, offers special benefits to owners and staffs of small businesses not able to effect coverage in any other way.

"We want to bring home to the citizens of this community the value of the work being done on their behalf by this organization," said Arnold Webb, secretary-manager and an enthusiastic Chamber worker for the past three years.

"Organized effort can do more than anything else to keep Victoria on the map. If Victoria prospers everyone prospers, be he merchant, professional, business operator or employee."

Every Walk of Life

"Our chamber represents citizens in every walk of life and it is highly regarded all across Canada. By the united efforts of all our members we plan to make this community second to none in Canada."

The Victoria Chamber is associated with similar organizations all across the country and is also the headquarters of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island.

Its aims are:

To protect and advance the legitimate interests of all its members, to promote any undertaking that will add to the development of the community, to act as a watchdog on behalf of all citizens, to act as an ambassador of goodwill for businessmen and the community, to improve relations between business and the public, to strive for the highest possible standard of business methods, to justify public confidence in the integrity of chamber members.

Chamber policy is determined by a board of 18 elected directors who receive, consider and rule on recommendations from groups or committees and assign projects to them.

The majority of members are small firms. While all the larger firms are members, more than two-thirds have less than five employees.

History Recorded

In the Chamber office at 816 Wharf Street, are 22 old-minute books which in faded ink reveal much of the organization's history.

The first book records that a small group of Victoria businessmen "favorable to the establishment of a Chamber of Commerce" met in the old Exchange News building on Feb. 9, 1863.

Robert Burnaby, after whom the town of Burnaby was named, became its first president, with James Low as secretary. The earliest members include men whose names are perpetuated in the names of Victoria streets and buildings.

"These old minute books show the influence the Chamber has had in the development of this city from earliest times," said Mr. Webb.

"We believe its influence in the future will be that much greater."

Special Groups

An integral part of the organization are the five special committees or working groups. These groups and their chairmen are:

Public Affairs (E. L. Mallett), Tourist Trade (Sam Lane), Retail Merchants (R. A. H. Lort), Industrial (B. J. Tennyson), Harbor and Transportation (Gordon Whiting).

The Chamber puts out a monthly news sheet, The Report, which is widely circulated over Vancouver Island and contains live comment on topical issues affecting Island businessmen.

GENUINE INTEREST and a sympathetic approach make Miss Nellie Tholen of Portland, Ore., one of the most sought after adjudicators in the Pacific Northwest. She will preside this year over piano classes in the Greater Victoria Music Festival which opens April 29 and runs till May 9. Miss Tholen is a distinguished piano teacher.

AUTHENTIC 'CARNAVAL' TO BE SEEN AT ROYAL

When Canada's National Ballet Company decided to include in its repertoire, "Le Carnaval" (choreography by Michel Fokine to Robert Schumann's music), it was typical of the artistic director, Celia Franca, that she sought out the greatest living source of information on the ballet.

In London she consulted with Idzikowsky, contemporary of Nijinsky and Miss Franca's former teacher. Idzikowsky and Nijinsky had alternated the leading role of Harlequin with the famed Diaghilev company.

When the rehearsals were finished Idzikowsky said: "Teach it like that, Celia, and your Canadians will be seeing the real thing."

So the "real thing" it is that Victorians will see when the National Ballet Company dances "Carnaval" at matinee and evening performance April 26, during its two-day visit at the Royal Theatre.

It's easy to own a home. Today, more than 70% of Greater Victoria's families are home owners. You can be one, too, paying for it like rent. There is no advantage in waiting; many families who put off buying a home in 1941, in 1950, and 1956, "waiting for prices to come down," are still waiting. With costs of labor and materials still rising, prices will surely never be lower. So why wait? With modern financing methods almost anyone with a regular income can own a home.

CLOSER THAN WE THINK

MINING ON THE MOON

It's the moon is not made of green cheese. Much of it is mineral, so it might well be a source of replacement for many of the elements we earthlings are rapidly using up. The opinion of British astronomer, Dr. James Hopwood, is that the lithium and potassium may be found in good supply. That's why we say we'll be mining on the moon.

One way to mine would be with the half-constructed giant machines that dig the deep canyons of our natural world. While no such machine is available today, the modern technology has many ways of doing it. A special digger can dig and walk like a spider. Another can dig and walk like a spider. Another can dig and walk like a spider.

GRIMACING BRAVELY. Times' reporter Kerr donned a crash helmet today and prepared for a drive through town with Mandrake, the blindfolded magician. It was unique, but uneventful, said Kerr, who went home early. Mandrake is recovered sufficiently to give a magic show at Central Junior High School tonight at 8 for Lions' charities. (Times Photo by Halkett.)

QUESTION: DID MANDRAKE REACH PEAK OF PERFECTION?

Cowering Passenger Reports on Blind Drive

By DINAH KERR
"Extra-sensory perception" Mandrake the Magician called it. Personally, I think he peeked. But if he did, that was a feat of magic in itself. Mandrake drove me through town today. I was blinded by pure fear. He had two business cards, strips of masking tape and a multi-folded black cloth over his eyes.

They had been put in place by Chief John Blackstock and Simon Whitlow, 15. And who would accuse the chief of police and the son of Christ Church Cathedral's dean of cheating? Besides, the chief wouldn't ride with Mandrake. Even "Miss Velvet", the magician's wife, conveniently got lost in the "crowd" that gathered at our starting point, Fort and Quadra. I was the only passenger.

They wanted me to sit on top of the back seat in the convertible. I didn't. The script was too close to the "Perils of Pauline" as it was. I covered right on the seat like an ordinary human being. Mandrake fumbled his way to the car and our motorcycle escort Cpl. Joe Barlow started revving up. Mandrake started the car and we moved off. We hadn't gone three feet when he waggled his fingers out the window and said "I can't find my motorcycle." Well, I lost my heart for the whole business right there. He waved his hands about again, as though reading Braille on the wind, and found him. The corporal didn't look around once. But Mandrake said he was watching through the rear view mirror. The rest, mercifully, was a blank. I remember only driving down Douglas and Mandrake saying he had driven blindfolded about 70 times and never had an accident. Then I remember driving straight for a car at Yates and Blanshard. The other driver's face was a study in horror. But we missed him. Ten minutes later we parked in a bus zone and it was all over. He must have peeked.

Warmest Day Of Year Friday; Unofficial 72

Weekend Outlook Points to Cloud

Shirt-sleeved Victorians basked in the warmest temperatures of the year Friday as the official thermometer reached 62 at Gonzales Heights, and at least one downtown reading touched 72. The warm day seemed even warmer under almost cloudless skies, and with exceptionally light winds. Outlook for the weekend is not quite so bright, but temperatures will remain mild, in the 45 to 55 degree range. Only two cities in Canada registered higher official temperatures than Victoria Friday, 67 at Kamloops and 64 at Penticton.

$9,000 NEEDED FOR OBJECTIVE BY RED CROSS

Greater Victoria Red Cross campaign is still $9,000 short of its objective, chairman T. Ledley McMaster said today. Residential division has met its quota but the business and industrial sections are "several thousand dollars under," he said. Anyone missed by the campaign should call campaign headquarters at 5-6231 and a messenger will be sent for the donation. Goal of the drive is $70,500. The $9,000 difference "is not great, but it is vital," Mr. McMaster said. "Every dollar subscribed is required to maintain the many services and acts of mercy being performed the world over by the Red Cross."

Wage Hike Won By City Police

10.7% Boost Awarded By Board

Victoria city police were awarded wage increases totalling 10.7 per cent over 1957 basic scale in a unanimous conciliation report today. The award covers 93 members of the 95-member force, or all ranks up to and including inspectors.

It brings Victoria rates of pay within a dollar or two of New Westminster and West Vancouver police wages, police union secretary-treasurer Cons. Lorne Shandley said. Vancouver's scale for 1958 has not yet been determined. Unconfirmed reports indicated city firemen, who also went to conciliation, were granted about the same increase as police in a report handed down today.

Spokesmen were not available for confirmation. By the award, a first class constable will receive about $398 a month, compared with the 1957 rate of $359.58.

The report was signed by chairman W. J. Stone, the city's nominee. John E. Goldring and union nominee Halford Wilson. It said: "From the determination of 1957 basic monthly rate, an increase of 5.75 per cent can be granted, and a further 5 per cent of the 1957 basic monthly rate be added as from July 1, 1958."

"Example: first class constable basic rate, 1957, $359.58." Ranks over first class constable would receive a higher increase, but based on the same percentages. The initial increase of 5.75 per cent is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1958.

Church Parade For 1,000 Cadets Set for April 20

More than 1,000 cadets from all Greater Victoria cadet units will participate in a huge church parade with bands and colors, Sunday, April 20, in the first such parade ever held in Victoria.

Cadets will form up at the Hudson's Bay Company grounds at 10:30 a.m. and march past the saluting base on the library steps where Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, will take the salute.

Cadets will then split into two groups to attend services at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral and Christ Church Cathedral.

During the week following, all units will hold open house for the public during parade nights, and the week will be climaxed by the first tri-services cadet ball, April 26, in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

Former Gunners Of 1914-18 Meet To Plan Reunion

Members of the 15th Brigade (CFA) Association will meet next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the office of Gordon A. Cameron, 612 View Street, to plan a gathering which will mark the 42nd anniversary of their departure for overseas service in the First World War.

These veterans hold their reunions every second year and they come from as far north as Prince George, as far south as Los Angeles and as far east as Calgary.

At their last reunion 87 artillerymen attended. The reunion will be held late in May, close to the date of May 26, which was the day of their departure in 1916. All members are invited to attend the planning meeting.

Unemployed Total In District Dropping Slowly

A slow but steady drop in the number of unemployed persons in this area was reported this week by J. H. Fox, manager of the National Employment Service office here.

There are now 3,837 unemployed men, 171 less than two weeks ago, and 1,578 unemployed women, or 62 less than two weeks ago.

Up-Island construction projects have taken a number of welders and iron workers, Mr. Fox said. Women are being called for work in hotels, restaurants, cleaning plants, and in domestic service.

Probe of Death Of Woman Set

An inquest into the death of Evelyn Byrnest, no fixed address, found dead on a city street last weekend, has been ordered for April 24.

An analyst's report has been requested. Inquest will be at McCall's Funeral Home at 10 a.m.

POLICE LACKING NEW LEADS IN $3,000 TCA SAFECRACKING

City police continued their investigation without new leads into a $3,000 safe robbery at the downtown office of Trans-Canada Air Lines Thursday night. A thief chopped into the office safe and removed $1,800 cash and about $1,200 in cheques. Entry was by a washroom window.

Duncan RCMP reported Friday an attempt had been made to break into a safe at Imperial Oil Ltd. office at Cowichan Bay, also overnight Thursday. Entry was not gained, but a dial was knocked off the safe.

Victorian Takes Garden Honors

A 45-year-old Victorian with only four years experience in growing rock garden flowers, took top prize Friday at the annual plant competition of the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society show at the Crystal Garden.

The show featuring more than 500 rare plants is opened to the public until 10 tonight. John E. Erickson, 273 Paliser, a butcher by trade, was awarded the Dr. C. T. Hilton Trophy for Alpine plants which received the highest aggregate points in the show.

He beat some of the Island's most experienced Alpine plant growers. Mr. Erickson, a former resident of Prince Rupert, moved to Victoria four years ago.

THREE TROPHIES V. W. Ahier, president, who spends his summer holidays collecting rare plants in Alpine regions, won three trophies: for having the most outstanding plant suitable for a rock garden, the best native North American plant, and the best plant of primula polyanthus. Albert de Mezey won a trophy for the most outstanding rhododendron—a shrub covered with hundreds of coral-pink blooms.

The trophy for the highest aggregate points in the novice section was won by R. S. Martin. Prize winners in the children's section were: Spring Harrison, Linda Brown, Marian McDowell, Margo Wade, H. Pondigman, Penny Wilson, Wendy Gerry and Julie Clark.

Price Probe Members Meet Cabinet Here

Rising food prices in British Columbia were discussed this afternoon at an informal meeting between the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and members of the B.C. cabinet and their deputies.

The commissioners, headed by Dr. Andrew Stewart of Edmonton, were guests of the government at luncheon in the Union Club after which the informal talks were held.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said the government was anxious to co-operate with the commission by securing any information it required on prices in B.C.

With Mr. Bonner at the meeting were Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy, Provincial Secretary Wesley Black and Health Minister Eric Martin and senior government officials.

MONTE ROBERTS

Britain's leading men's fashion magazine has some rawther nawsty things to say about newspapermen.

About the kindest reference the magazine, namely the Tailor and Cutter, makes to newspapermen is to call them "tatty devils."

As a newspaperman, I do not know whether to be angry or just terribly, terribly hurt.

Possibly it would help me decide if I knew what "tatty" means.

On the other hand, it might be better if I remained ignorant.

The unkind remarks in Tailor and Cutter were made in the course of a defence of the wardrobe sported by Liberace. (Remember him? He has teeth, a piano, and empty-nine million dollars.)

The magazine suggests newspapermen quit criticizing Liberace's glittering costumes and examine the "traditional mess" of their own clothes.

Liberace's clothes are referred to as "excellently imaginative."

Says the magazine: "When the ill-dressed minions of London's newspaper row put themselves in the insecure position of criticizing Liberace's clothes, they might have a look at the traditional mess in which they wrap themselves daily."

"The journalist on the whole is a tatty devil and all to no purpose. Journalists do not appear as sartorial characters nowadays. They just look dull, tired, and untidy."

Well, now, look here, Tailor and Cutter.

We journalists may be tatty, whatever that is.

But it isn't our fault. Just like men in every walk of life, we wear the clothes our wives pick out for us, bought with the money left over after our wives buy THEIR clothes.

The reason Liberace looks so sweet, and we look so tatty, is simple.

Liberace doesn't have a wife to pick out his clothes.

He just has a piano, teeth.

Jazz Cellar Out As Fire Marshal Condemns 'Scene'

An order from the city building inspector and fire chief closed Victoria's first jazz cellar Friday.

It was stated the premises, located in a basement at 727 Fort, did not meet requirements of the fire marshal's office.

"The Scene," as the club is called, opened only last week and held jazz sessions Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. It was scheduled to open to members only each Friday and Saturday night.

A similar fate befell "The Cellar," in Vancouver, earlier this year. Both are establishments of Progressive Artists,

Peace Urged On Trustees, Teachers

Teachers and school trustees were urged to stop bickering and make sure the schools remain open in a resolution passed by the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation at the close of its four-day convention Friday.

The resolution indicated that the federation is not optimistic over the outcome of conciliation procedures set up between the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

The federation agreed to use its offices in any way possible to end the present conflict. The two-part resolution urged that boards of school trustees "refrain from fixing teachers' salaries without recourse to negotiation and/or arbitration."

It also recommended that teachers' associations accept arbitration board awards as binding and "refrain from declaring in dispute any district where such an award has been handed down and put into effect."

Preparing food is fun when it can be done outdoors and when boys take over. Linda Gibson watches smilingly, as Robin Dalziel works at the stone fireplace and Dale Brown accepts her glass of Coke from Ross Pitre. Fair-haired Linda is smartly attired in sharply-contrasting black and white. The Banlon sweater has a fringed shawl collar and draw-string blouson waist. Her Sacony slim jims are a sooty black and very tapered. Dale wears Jantzen's "Tom Tom" windjammer set in a striking geometric print of scarlet and white. The blouse has a high bateau neckline and drawstring waist, the pedal pushers are slashed at the trouser cuff and have deep side pockets.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Special Clothes for Special 'Dates' Outdoors

By NONA DAMASKE

Whether it is a barbecue party around an outdoor fireplace, a wiener roast by a beach fire or a picnic basket lunch and swim at the lake, there is a colorful, comfortable outfit for everyone.

Sports clothes these days are designed to be worn with comfort and with no thought of special care for most of them are washable. The sports garment that must be dry cleaned is the exception rather than the rule.

Teen-age girls really do go in for warm-weather separates.

For the most part, they are inexpensive, and quite a collection may be co-ordinated during a summer.

Tailored shorts and bra allow old Sol to do a good job of sun tanning . . . and matched sets in gabardine, tartan gingham, cotton poplin and terry toweling are available in white, colors and stripes.

Jamaica shorts with tuck-in T-shirts or chemise tops are smart for the lass who enjoys knee socks and loafers. Pedal pushers are in great demand but slim jims, which are longer, top the list with most young gals.

There are many attractive skirts for co-ordinating, too, but it seems these are of little interest to the teen-age outdoor group at the moment.

Once a fad begins among the younger set . . . watch out . . . when told that all the girls are wearing a certain thing parents may as well give in gracefully or be subject to all the arguments and excuses that a teen-ager with an active mind can think up.

Hollywood Actress Advises Young Hopefuls

By KITTY DIXON

She's coached Debbie Reynolds, danced with Fred Astaire, lunched at Greer Garson's home and been a guest at glittering Hollywood parties.

And now she lives in Victoria.

Ann Cavendish left her busy acting-coaching career in Hollywood because she wanted to start her young son, Alex Kunody, in a Canadian private school. She chose Malvern House because she wanted to live in Victoria with her mother, Mrs. J. A. MacIntosh, and near her sister, Mrs. Hugh Farquhar.

The talented actress plans to return to Hollywood in two years. Meanwhile she's an asset to Victoria dramatic circles.

Ann's advice to young actresses with dreams of Hollywood careers is to bone up on Shakespeare.

"Studios are most impressed if they find you've had good grounding in Shakespearian acting," she said. "They consider it fine basic training for all acting."

She tells young hopefuls to take ballet lessons "for poise and stage presence."

"Once in Hollywood, go to the best coach you can find," she said. "The expense is worth it."

"But," she warned, "Get as much acting experience as you can in your home town before you take the big step."

Ann reaps her advice from personal experience. She started out in Vancouver, studying with Frank Lamberti-Smith and snapping up roles in as many Shakespearian plays as she could.

When she went to Hollywood she studied with Josephine Dillon Gable (Clark Gable's first wife and his dramatic coach), who was head of Warner Brother's dramatic school.

Ann graduated with honors from the school and then taught for Josephine Dillon Gable. She also landed a contract with David O. Selznick, which she held until his company was dissolved three years later.

Some of the movies in which she appeared during that time were "Gone With the Wind" (her first movie, in which she played a young girl), "Duel in the Sun" and "Gaslight."

She free-lanced for the following five years. "I did about 32 bit parts," Ann recalled. "I always seemed to get the part of a nurse or a nun."

During her first years in Hollywood Ann lived with her mother, who accompanied her whenever she went "on location."

Later Ann appeared on the stage at Hollywood's Max Reinhardt Theatre and taught at Los Angeles Conservatory of Drama for three years.

Evenings she taught at Josephine Dillon Gable's School of Radio and Television. It was there she coached such shining stars as Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher when they were yet unknown.

Of another pupil, Elizabeth Taylor, Ann said, "She was very shy at 17 and I didn't think her beautiful at all. Her hair was bushy and her eyebrows much too thick."

Ann lived right in the heart of the Hollywood stars' residential district, and at one time had as neighbors the late John Garfield one one side and Victor Mature on the other.

"Garfield took his acting seriously, and would often pace up and down in his garden until two and three in the morning, learning lines," said Ann. "As for Victor Mature, he's a real playboy. Men don't like him; women do."

When Ann returns to Hollywood she plans to do some coaching and acting for television. She is teaching now in Victoria, and hopes to do some television work in Vancouver during the summer.

ANN CAVENDISH

"The scenery was swell—too bad the cast kept getting in front of it."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Pep Up Your Spring Menus—Use Spicy Indian Chutney

By PENNY SAVER

Give a bit of zip and zest to your spring eating with a chutney imported from India. It's a sauce that will give a lift to any main course and make it tongue-tantalizing and tasty. Served with cold cuts or broiled meats, this chutney has a nippy tang that out-classes any other because it "brings out" the flavor in the meat. A tall, 34-ounce bottle is priced at $1.95.

Here's a gift that would be much appreciated by a friend living alone. It's a set of tiny jars full of delicious English jams and marmalades. There are six assorted jars in the collection, including strawberry, raspberry (exceptionally good), black cherry and orange marmalade.

Delicious for breakfast or the tea tray. These jars are selling in sets for $1.55.

Shopping in town just around lunchtime? Why not stop in to a favorite eating spot of mine where the food is scrumptious but the price low? Here you can order a plate of baked spiced ham with lettuce and tomato salad, Indian mango chutney, brown bread, butter and a beverage. You'll never guess the tab for a lunch like this... only 75 cents.

Suppose you're down on a late shopping spree around 4 in the afternoon. You could have a spot of tea at this little shop and an English toasted tea bun with jam for 35 cents. It's a handy place because it's close to town.

There's a certain shop in town that stocks imported delicacies such as pickled silverfish, onions, 55 cents a bottle; pickled walnuts, 65 cents a jar; mushroom ketchup (just the thing for steaks and chops) 45 cents a bottle; apple jelly, 24 cents, and best of all piccalilli, a highly-seasoned vegetable pickle at 55 cents a jar.

Better phone me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where to buy.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The condition of your hair depends to a great extent on the condition of your scalp. It is just about as impossible to grow beautiful tresses when the scalp is tight and tense and the blood stream is devitalized, as it would be to grow flowers from worn out soil.

There are many factors which affect the hair. An excessively oily or an extremely dry scalp is believed by many experts to be the forerunner of thinning hair, drabness and perhaps even graying. Such conditions should not be allowed to continue.

Remember always that the important, living part of the hair is underneath the skin. Your top knot is fed by your blood stream. There is a little bulb at the end of each hair through which your tresses receive their nourishment. If you are having trouble with your hair, you certainly should investigate your diet. Like other parts of the body, hair reflects anemia or poor health.

While no one food will create beautiful locks, an adequate intake of vitamins and minerals is essential. Be sure to get lots of calcium, phosphorus and iron. These are found in lean beef, liver, oysters, milk, celery, carrots, cheese, eggs, oranges, prunes, greens and other foods. Massage and brushing are necessary in order to overcome either dry or oily hair and, along with one of the splendid tonics available, will bring you lovely results if you will indulge in them regularly. The hair often becomes very oily after times of worry or strain. At these times the scalp may become tight and tense and the pressure created may cause the little oil glands to work overtime. Massage and brushing tend to normalize this condition and also provide stimulation which brings more blood to the hair roots.

NINE-DAY DIET STARTS MONDAY

You can take 10 pounds off your figure in just nine days by following the menus to appear in Josephine Lowman's "Why Grow Old?" column. You won't starve—there's plenty to eat on the Nine-Day Diet. But you'll be eating the right things for nourishment and weight loss. The Nine-Day Diet starts Monday on the women's pages in this newspaper.

The oily head should have frequent shampoos. The tonics for oily scalp are astringent. The woman who has extremely dry hair should shampoo her hair infrequently since soap and water, and especially the dryers, diminish the natural oils in the scalp. If you would like my leaflet "Stars in Your Crown" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 52 to Josephine Lowman in care of this paper.

CENTENNIAL SILHOUETTE

Young Pioneer Family Expanded From Rough Cabin To Spacious Farm Dwelling on Saanich Acreage

By ELIZABETH FORBES

It was a sunny day in May, 1888—a hundred years ago. The sky was blue, the grass green, and lilies, bluebells and peacocks (shooting stars) were growing in profusion along the trail that skirted the foot of Little Saanich Mountain.

A horse and a wagon was on that trail. The wagon loaded with household effects. In the driver's seat was young William Thomson, a ship's carpenter who had come ashore from a wreck up the west coast of Vancouver Island; found his way to the little fort of Victoria and finally decided to take up land on the Saanich Peninsula.

Beside him on the high seat was his wife, Margaret, 16 years of age. She held her first baby—a boy—born a few months before in Victoria.

The little family ate a noon-day meal at the foot of the mountain; rested awhile, then set off again along the boundary of the Indian reservation and down to the fertile valley that William Thomson had pre-empted for his own.

The sun was slanting in the west when Margaret Thomson first saw her new home. She was tired. Perhaps her husband had painted too glowing a picture.

In any case, when she saw the little one-room cabin, with no flooring but the hard earth; no bed, only a pile of straw in the corner; no furniture, only one chair that her husband had made and carved when he was courting her, and no stove, only an outdoor fireplace—her heart sank.

She said little. In later days she would tell that she spread her plaid shawl on the straw bed, lay down with her baby beside her and cried herself to sleep.

DID HER PART
In the morning, however, when she stood in the doorway of the tiny cabin and looked out at the wooded hillsides and the flower-studded meadows, things looked different.

"I decided to make the best of it," she would tell her grandchildren long years later, "your grandfather had chosen it for our home and home it was going to be. I had to do my part to make it a real home."

She was the first white woman to settle on the Saanich Peninsula. Her second son, Alex, born the following year, was the first white child in the district.

Margaret Thomson's life story is part and parcel of the early years of Victoria. Born Margaret Dyer, in Huntingdonshire, Scotland, she came to this country on the second trip of the Norman Morrison, after her own father had died and her mother had remarried to a Hudson's Bay colonist, Duncan Lidgate.

On arrival the family went immediately to Craighower Farm where Duncan Lidgate worked with Kenneth Mackenzie. Later, young Margaret lived with Capt. Cooper and his family, helping with the housework, going to school and learning to cook and sew.

It was here that William Thomson met her after he had taken up 1,000 acres of land in West Saanich and built his one-room cabin.

Young Margaret was a beauty, with shining golden hair, blue eyes and pink cheeks. William Thomson fell head over heels in love.

One hundred years ago Margaret Thomson came to Saanich. Her descendants still gather at the family home, "Bannockburn" once a year, to honor her memory.

They were married shortly after in the little Anglican Christ Church with Rev. Mr. Cridge officiating. History says it was the second wedding performed in the church.

At first the Thomsons lived outside the fort, on the corner of Yates and Langley Streets, where the new Post Office stands today.

It was when their first boy was six months old that the young husband finally persuaded his wife to go out to "Bannockburn" as he had named his spacious acreage.

In the beginning the only neighbors were the Indians and so it was that Margaret Thomson and the daughter of the chief of the West Saanich tribe became fast friends—a friendship that lasted throughout their lives.

As time went on, the tiny cabin gave place to a timber house of four rooms. This in turn was replaced by a spacious dwelling with a veranda around the four sides and large barns for the stock.

An orchard was planted and yielded apples, cherries, pears and plums.

The Thomsons killed their own meat. There were chickens, turkeys and geese; plenty of thick cream and butter and cheese. Wild berries grew in abundance.

In all, there were 15 Thomson children, ten boys and five girls, all born in Saanich, except David, the eldest.

There were gay times in the friendly farmhouse. Evenings to remember when the whole family gathered around the brick fireplace after dinner to talk of the day's happenings. Finally Alex, second eldest son, would take out his "fiddle" and there would be dancing until 9 p.m.

H. W. (Kenny) McKenzie, eldest son of the eldest Thomson daughter Helen, remembers the dancing even when he was a small boy.

"At nine o'clock Grandfather Thomson would get up and wind up the clock," he reminisces, "Alex would put away the fiddle and we'd all be off to bed."

This same grandson remembers Margaret Thomson well. "She always wore a big, white apron, crisply clean and starched," he says. "And she never let anyone leave Bannockburn without going to the door herself, to wish them 'God-speed.'"

Today, the gracious home still stands on the Mt. Newton Crossroad. Its doors are still open in friendly hospitality. The flowers around the door-yard.

St. John's Anglican Church Scene Of Herrndorf-Harrison Nuptials

Naomi Elizabeth Harrison became the bride of Sub-Lt. Frederik Herrndorf, HMCs Skeena, in a naval ceremony, this afternoon, in St. John's Anglican Church.

The daughter of Cmdr. and Mrs. Leslie Harrison wore a bridal gown of her own design and creation for her wedding to the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Herrndorf of Winnipeg, Man.

Gown was of heavy white satin, styled with squared neckline having tiny insets of lace forming petal points. From a fitted waistline the skirt belled out in deep inverted pleats and swept into a chapel train.

A bandeau of white heather held the bride's fingertip-length veil which she wore over-the-face as she entered the church. Her arm bouquet of red roses and white heather was made by her mother. For "something old" she carried a hand-drawn linen handkerchief from her maternal grandmother's wedding trousseau. The bride's only jewelry was a single strand of cultured pearls, gift of the groom.

Attendants to the bride were Miss Shirley McLeod, maid of honor; Mrs. K. S. Foster, bridesmatron; Miss Nona Shove, bridesmaid; Miss Catherine Anne Herrndorf, sister of the groom, junior bridesmaid, and Miss Nancy Larkin, flower girl.

Full-length gowns of chiffon in varying shades of blues and greens over iridescent taffeta were worn by all attendants except the flower girl. The gowns were styled with full skirts and pleated shawl collars. With them, attendants carried rings of pink tulips, white hyacinths, narcissus and pink heather and wore bandeaux of similar flowers in their hair.

The dainty flower girl wore a short dress of pale green chiffon over pale blue taffeta and carried a small basket of spring flowers. In her hair she wore a wreath of matching flowers.

Sub-Lt. Kenneth S. Foster, RCN, was best man, and Lieut. W. F. J. Thomas, Lieut. R. Wilson and brother of the groom, Peter Herrndorf, were ushers. Rev. K. M. King conducted the ceremony. Mrs. Dennis Ashby sang "Love's Coronation."

White plum blossom, snapdragons, tulips, carnations and heather were arranged in baskets in the church.

At the reception in Brenta Lodge, Brentwood, the newlyweds cut a three-tier cake which had been made by the bride's mother. It was topped with a miniature sail boat and surrounded by white heather. The bride's godfather, Ray Stone, proposed the toast.

For receiving guests, mother of the bride wore a two-piece printed silk dress of pink and white with black accessories and corsage of stephanotis. Mother of the groom wore a lace dress in pigeon blue with matching accessories and corsage of pink roses surrounding a gardenia.

For a honeymoon motor trip to Oregon, the new Mrs. Herrndorf chose a pigeon blue worsted suit with navy and white accessories, and white linen straw hat. Her corsage was of red roses and white heather.

Larry Rantz was best man and David Morton and Robert Grant ushered.

A three-tier cake topped with two doves holding wedding rings centred the bridal table at the reception held at 950 Terrace Avenue. Tulips and snapdragons decorated the rooms.

Uncle of the bride, Alvin Jacobson, proposed a toast.

A two-piece Aljean suit in frost white was worn by the new Mrs. Daggitt for a honeymoon in Oregon. Her accessories were copper toned and she topped the outfit with a muskrat fur jacket. She had a corsage of Talisman roses.

The couple will live at 1335 Balmoral Avenue.

Rev. J. A. Roberts conducted the ceremony.

White taffeta formed the bride's graceful floor-length gown. Styled along princess lines, the dress had a high neckline with a yoke of Venetian lace. The wide bell-shaped skirt featured insets of matching lace. A pearl and sequin tiara held her chapel length veil studied with matching jewels. Her bouquet was of red and white carnations and stephanotis.

WEEK'S WORK

Plan and prepare outdoor planters and tubs for patios. Place orders for plants needed, to avoid substitutes and disappointments.
Delay planting out of tender flowers and vegetables until May 1 at least. This would include beans, corn, petunias, zinnias.
Dahlias which are unsprouted may be planted in well dug soil. Place stake by end containing buds, this avoids damaging the tuber later, when support of the growing stem is required.

Pinch back snapdragons, schizanthus, salpiglossis and asters when growth is about four inches tall. This induces bushiness, and produces sturdy plants by the time they are set outdoors.
Pot all cuttings as soon as rooted, and pick out all seedlings as soon as they can be held between the fingers.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Keeping Sharp Eye and Knife For Sucker Growth Pays Off

By JACK BEASTALL

Briar suckers on bush roses are well known to gardeners, especially their habit of popping up and developing into vigorous growths while the gardener's attention is elsewhere.

Such growths should be removed immediately they are noticed. If left to their own devices they will ruin the plant.

Usually they appear on plants which have been grafted to a foreign rootstock for the purpose of quickly increasing the quantity for sale, or to change the natural habit of growth.

In most cases the plants used to supply the rootstocks are naturally vigorous growers, and the budded varieties less robust.

It follows that if the rootstock should start its own top growth, the budded variety will suffer from less nourishment and eventually be smothered by the underling.

These sucker growths are not confined to roses, they appear on any grafted plant. This can include some perennials, many ornamental shrubs, and the fruit trees which are called "dwarfs."

Flowers of two different colors on a rhododendron are not rare nor unusual. One color is from the grafted portion and the other is on sucker growths which should have been removed before reaching flowering size. Rather than a curiosity, it is a sign of poor gardening, and a valuable plant will soon be lost.

MORE THE BETTER

There is, as usual, an exception to the rule. It is the black currant. The more sucker growths the black currant produces the more thrifty the plant because the best fruits can then be removed with a sharp knife, the word "sharp" being quite important.

REMOVE TISSUE

The cut should include a small area of the root's outer covering adjacent to the sucker growth. This removes bud tissue which is likely to produce more suckers at a later date.

Being small, the cut needs no further treatment and the soil can be replaced and firmed against the root.

Cutting off sucker growths at soil level amounts to pruning, and the old saying, "the more you prune, away the more growth will return" certainly holds good in this case.

Much time, and many plants, will be saved by the gardener who inspects his shrubs and fruit trees regularly and takes the trouble to remove the suckers in the way described so that they will not return.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q.—Some of my polyanthus plants appear wilted, even though the soil is moist. Can you tell me the reason, and the cure?—L. McR., James Bay.

A.—The cause is probably the grubs of primula (or strawberry) weevil which eat away the roots of your plants. Dig those which are wilting and carefully inspect the soil for fat, cream-colored grubs one-third inch long. If present, wash the roots free from all soil, and replant in fresh place. Use chlordane, benexane or vapam in the soil as directed on containers, around the other plants.

Q.—Last year I had lovely tulips and dug them in late June for replanting in October. This year I notice most of them are coming up as a single large leaf with no flower buds visible. What do you think has happened to them and what can I do?—D.R., Elk Lake.

A.—You probably had top size bulbs last year which gave you the most perfect flowers. The bulbs then produced a new but small bulb which you planted last fall. This year you will have few if any flowers, but by giving two feedings of complete fertilizer (one now, and another in early May) you will increase the size of the new bulb, and it will produce a good flower next year. The single large leaf indicates that you have a very healthy bulb now, but it is not yet ready to produce flowers.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q.—What type of outdoor lighting should I use to illuminate foliage in the garden?—A. K.

A.—Mercury vapor-type spotlights or floodlights have a high blue-green-white light output, and are very satisfactory for the purpose. Bulbs must be used with a special transformer designed for their operation.

Q.—How can you check a lawn for degree of dryness?—T. P.

A.—Select an inconspicuous spot in the lawn, and cut a plug of turf two or three inches in depth. Examine soil, and if it's dry an inch or more downward from the surface, your lawn is in need of water. Replace plug and tamp in place.

Hobby Boards Easy To Build

Each year more Canadians—young and old alike—adopt hobbies in their leisure time. Most of the hobbies are simple and require little material. Cards, writing, painting and family games, however, require ample table space. Hobby boards of durable plastic-finished hardboard have solved many family disputes when no tables were available.

Each member of the family may have his own large hobby board. Since predecorated hardboard comes in 10 attractive colors, each hobbyist can identify his own board.

Additional hobby boards come in handy when guests arrive to participate in card games, stamp and coin hobbies and amusement games. The attractive boards may "double" as food trays for buffets and late evening snacks.

Power Saw Eliminates Boring Holes

Rely on just one tool — a portable power saw — for making interior cuts in a board. A circular speed saw, for example, makes fast and smooth "plunge" cuts simply by placing the saw base on the work with the blade elevated, turning on the power and then gradually lowering the blade into the work. It eliminates the need for boring starting holes and sawing from them with a key-hole saw.

RUSS CLAIM IRON ARM CONTROLLED BY MIND

LONDON (AP)—Moscow Radio claimed today that Soviet scientists have made an artificial arm which is controlled by thoughts. Most artificial limbs are controlled by muscular movement.

"To perform any operation, it is enough to think the relevant movements and the iron arm will carry them out," the broadcast said.

It explained the limb "is based on the use of bio-currents which arise in human muscles in response to commands proceeding from the brain" through the preserved parts of severed muscles.

It is to be shown at the Brussels world fair this month.

Plumbing, Heating and Appliance Centre

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A globe-trotting grandmother from London, Eng., has arrived in Victoria on the last lap of a global tour taking in Sweden, Denmark, Italy, Sicily, the Isle of Capri, the Philippines, East Africa, Japan, Hong Kong, Canada and the United States.

For seven years past Mrs. Elsie M. Cowdery, a sprightly widow from Earls Court, West London, has spent most of her time seeing the world. "I want to see as much of it as possible before I get too old to travel," says Mrs. Cowdery with her jolly adventurous smile.

FUTURE PLANS

"Fortunately there are still a few countries I have not yet visited and before long I plan to tour Russia, India, Australia, New Zealand and the Fiji Islands."

"I confess I was past 50 before I was able to gratify my life-long wish to travel. Before then most of my life was spent in southern England."

On her present tour Mrs. Cowdery has had reunions with two of her children who migrated from England.

Her daughter, Margaret, is married to Tony Pollard, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Pollard of 582 Baxter, Victoria. Her son, Terry, lives with his wife and children near Nairobi, Kenya, where he is a government maize inspector.

In Kenya, Mrs. Cowdery stayed at the famous Tretoos Hotel, which is built high in the trees so that the guests may look down on the wild animals below.

"This was a thrilling experience," she said. "As we were approaching the hotel, our guide alerted us to run for the ladders. A wild rhinoceros was charging down on us."

"I have never climbed a ladder so fast in my life... and I was told Queen Elizabeth had a similar experience when she and Prince Philip stayed at the Tretoos Hotel."

"Soon after the Queen was there, the hotel was burned down by Mau Mau terrorists, but it has since been restored. It is amazing to get such first-rate hotel service—fine cooking and every comfort—high up in the trees."

KENYA "PEACEFUL"

Mrs. Cowdery found life in Kenya "very peaceful," with few reminders of the Mau Mau terrorism which was quelled by British troops.

On the Isle of Capri the lady traveller called on Gracie Fields, the world-famous comedienne, and had lunch at her famous Mediterranean resort.

"Gracie now charges her guests for meals but the proceeds go to her sick children's home in England. She is as lively and amusing as ever and her home is an absolute paradise."

Mrs. Cowdery is enchanted with British Columbia and plans a visit to the northern part of the province before returning via the United States to her home in London.

Another daughter, Joyce, is married to a London publisher and has achieved some distinction as a sculptor and painter.

"I now have five grandchildren—one in London, two in British Columbia and two in Kenya," she said. "That should be enough to keep me travelling."

FIRST IN 45 YEARS

Full B.C. History Published in Fall

British Columbia's first full history in 45 years will be published this fall by Macmillan in Toronto.

It is the official centennial history being written here by Dr. Margaret Ormsby, 945 Royal Terrace, a professor of history at University of British Columbia, now on leave of absence for the job.

She participated Friday in the annual meeting of the Pacific Northwest History Conference at Holyrood House.

Dr. Ormsby says the history will be "a readable history that people will enjoy. It will be a social history, one that portrays the life of the people, what they were thinking, doing, and how they were managing their affairs."

She said it is "extremely colorful, a tremendous story of achievement."

Since Dr. Ormsby started writing last August, she has covered the period from early exploration by the Spaniards to the 1900s.

The history is based on thorough research and on many papers not previously available to historians. It will be illustrated.

She was aided in research by two sets of five students each during two summers. It was on the research technique used that Dr. Ormsby spoke at the conference.

Bishop From India Here During Summer

Rev. Ronald Bryan, Anglican Bishop of Barrackpore, India, is expected to come to Victoria this summer following the Lambeth conference of Commonwealth bishops at London.

Bishop Bryan was consecrated assistant-bishop of Calcutta in the diocese of Barrackpore in 1951.

Braves Enter 18 Canoes For War Races May 18-19

Eighteen 11-paddle racing canoes will be entered in the war canoe races at Maple Bank Park May 18 and 19.

Top award this year, aside from cash, will be a B.C. Centennial Committee perpetual trophy, it was announced by Vancouver Island Indian Festival president, Percy Ross.

He said the annual two-day event this year will be the largest in local history with representatives of 26 Pacific Northwest tribes taking part. There will be a full schedule of sports and dances.

This year, as a Songhees Reserve centennial project, a large platform, six feet high, is to be erected to improve spectators' vision. The platform will be a permanent structure which will be built upon as finances permit, to eventually become a community hall.

The usual May Queen and Indian princess contests will be held along with rock and roll and square dancing to the music of an all-Indian orchestra.

Mr. Ross said main pre-event interest among local tribesmen centres on the canoe races.

Rivalry between the "Shadow" crew from Valdez Island, last year's winners, and the "Chinook" crew, runners up, is thought to be intense.

'False Alarm' Bomber Flights Spark Queries

LONDON (UP)—Labor members of Parliament interceded with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan today for more information on the revelation that "false alarms" have sent U.S. nuclear bombers into the air.

Three Socialists introduced formal motions for answer by the Prime Minister next week when Parliament reconvenes after its Easter recess.

The questions stemmed from publication in Britain of a dispatch by Frank H. Bartholomew, president of the United Press, on the U.S. Strategic Air Command.

The Opposition Labor Party is committed against carrying of nuclear weapons in peacetime. The Laborites keep Macmillan under a continual barrage of motions dealing with U.S. and British defence policy, particularly American use of bases in Britain.

Laborite J. Stonehouse has a motion for discussion Tuesday: "To ask the Prime Minister what arrangements have been made for him to be consulted before President Eisenhower gives the order to United States aircraft, flying from Great Britain under the DEW line warning system, to use the hydrogen bomb."

Buyer Willing To Deed Back Bargain Homes

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Morris Esche said today they will deed back three houses bought at sheriff's sales if the former owners will pay the expenses they have incurred.

Esche, a 60-year-old Purdue University student, and his wife found themselves in a furor this week after Mrs. Juanita Malin, 39, the widowed mother of nine children, reported her $10,000 house had been sold because of a $69.99 unpaid grocery bill.

Two other home owners also said Esche had bought their houses under similar circumstances, one for $80 and one for $475.

The Esches said they will be "more than happy to give the deeds to the property back to them."

"We purchased the property at a public auction," the Esches said in their statement. "At that time we did not know the personal circumstances of the families until we heard about it from the newspapers and other news sources."

The other houses involved were a $3,000 residence bought for $80, and a $3,500 house bought for $475.

SEVERAL HUNDRED SIKHS are expected to sit down to a large dinner at the Topaz Avenue temple Sunday to mark the Festival of Basakhi or the East Indian New Year. The event will also be celebrated with sports and religious services. Shown here is Sandara Singh, a veteran member of the community, helping to prepare Sunday's community dinner. The feast will feature national dishes, such as hot "Chupatis."

THEIR NEW YEAR

1,000 Sikhs Gather For 2-Day Festival

Over 1,000 Sikhs from all parts of Vancouver Island and the mainland gathered in Victoria today to celebrate the two-day festival of Basakhi.

Basakhi means "new birth" and marks the beginning of a new year or the spring cycle for East Indians in Canada.

The festival will feature religious services at the Topaz Street Temple, as well as sports, such as a soccer game between Victoria and Vancouver teams, volleyball and weight lifting.

$2,000 IN SALMON PRIZES

Cod-Catchers Get Derby Prize, Too

Are you one of those anglers who usually runs into bad luck and manages to hook only a cod or two in salmon derbies?

If so, mark a circle around Aug. 24 on your calendar. That's the date of the Chemoimus Rod and Gun Club's mammoth centennial fishing derby, which is offering a prize for the angler weighing in the biggest cod.

But if you're after a big prize, like a fully-equipped, outboard boat and trailer, you'll have to go chasing salmon. At least 11 prizes will be awarded to the anglers bringing in salmon. Only one—a tartan sport shirt—will be available for cod-catchers.

Top award on the prize list, now valued at more than $2,000, is a 14-foot boat, equipped with trailer, 10-hp outboard motor, collapsible canvas top, remote controls, gas tanks and a case of outboard oil.

The next six fishing prizes, in order, are a 5-hp outboard motor, car-top boat, camp table with folding stools, glass trolling rod and salmon reel, portable ice cooler, and a camp stove.

Hidden-weight prizes and perpetual and miniature trophies for senior and junior champions will also be presented after the derby, which will highlight the

Retirement Beckons English Rugby Great

LONDON (CP)—Ken Jones, one of the most famous wing three-quarters in rugby, has retired from the game.

He played his last game this week for Newport against the Barbarians, a rugby team composed of internationals, and was made captain for the match.

Newport won 13-8. As a sprinter he ran for Great Britain in the 1948 Olympic Games, captained the British team in the 1954 European championships and represented Wales in the 1954 British Empire Games in Vancouver.

Teamsters Reject Latest Offer By Construction Association

VANCOUVER (CP)—Members of the striking Teamsters' Union, Local 213, unanimously backed the decision of its executive to reject the latest offer of the British Columbia Heavy Construction Association.

The association, representing some 16 B.C. construction firms, had offered an increase of 40 cents an hour across the board with 20 cents retroactive to Sept. 15, 1957, and 13 cents retroactive to Jan. 1, this year.

Union secretary-treasurer Joe Whitford told the membership that the union's offer to negotiate was rejected by the association. The board had recommended increases totalling 53 cents an hour over two years.

Whitford was applauded when he said: "If the strike continues much longer we may decide to negotiate only on the full conciliation board's recommendation."

Three union representatives appointed by teamster president James Hoffa to inquire into the strike left for Seattle shortly after the union's offer to negotiate was rejected.

IN VENICE OF NORTH

Women-Run Ferries Now Just a Memory

By ELIZABETH RITSON
STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Less than 200 years ago, ferries rowed by women provided the principal means of public transport in Stockholm, often called "the Venice of the North" because of its many waterways and islands.

Today, with the opening of the line joining the southern and western sections, the city boasts an ultra-modern subway system.

But it was not the subway that first ousted the ferrywomen, an almost legendary race of tough stalwarts jocularly known as "the rowing madams." They already had surrendered to competition before the subway appeared. Hand-operated paddle-wheel boats beat them at the start of the 19th century. Bridges were being built, too, and later the first horse-drawn street cars appeared.

LONG DELAY

City authorities started to consider the idea of an underground or semi-underground transit system at least 50 years ago, but it was not until after the Second World War that the real work started.

Earlier, however, the first step toward the coordination of public transport was taken and the first "subway" section was opened in 1933. The track ran through a tunnel but could hardly be described as an underground railway. Part of the route was served by ordinary street cars, and in some places overhead wires were used instead of live rails.

In June, 1941 at one of the most fateful periods of the war while Germany was preparing its attack on the Soviet Union, the city council took its final decision on building a subway under the central part of the city. They had spent years considering various plans and were to spend a further four years polishing them up before the first spadeful of earth was turned in April, 1945. After that work went forward apace.

In 1950, the southern section was opened, bringing the subway from the southern suburbs as far as the bridge leading over the island of the "old city"—the ancient part of Stockholm referred to even today as "the city between the bridges."

MISSING LINK

In 1952, the western section was opened, linking the suburb of Vallingby with Kungsgatan, one of Stockholm's main shopping streets.

The most difficult section was the central line linking the southern and western sections which for years was known as "the missing link." This was opened by King Gustaf Adolf Nov. 24, 1957. Although it is only just over a mile long, it cost 117,000,000 krona ($22,230,000) or more than 60,000 krona ($11,400) a yard to build.

Almost all the line had to be sunk below the groundwater level and the nature of the ground through which it passes, including rock, sand, clay and rubble caused many difficulties.

But the city planners and the Stockholm Transport Corporation are still not satisfied. They already have in hand plans for extending the lines in westerly and southerly directions, and building a new line running north from the central station.

With these extensions, which will not be completed before 1964, Stockholm will have one of the most up-to-date subway and suburban transport systems in Europe.

Harrison's 'Higgins' Gets Bird

LONDON (Reuters)—British newspaper Tuesday scolded Rex Harrison, star of the hit musical My Fair Lady, for behaving like the arrogant Professor Higgins off-stage as well as on.

Harrison arrived from Paris Monday to rehearse for the musical's London opening April 30 and refused to speak to reporters.

The Daily Mirror says the British-born actor was undoubtedly well-cast as "the conceited martinet," Professor Higgins, "but he needn't start until the curtain goes up."

Postal Stamp Honors Explorer Verendrye

OTTAWA (CP)—The post office's forthcoming stamp commemorating French explorer La Verendrye, announced earlier this year, is to be a large, blue, five-cent denomination, the department said today.

To be issued June 4, the stamp carries a minimum of lettering, enabling the figures of the explorer and his Indian guide to stand out boldly against the background.

Designed by Ottawa artist Gerald Trotter, 28, the stamp is based on a monument by sculptor Emile Brunet of Montreal, raised in 1938 at St. Boniface, Man., by the St. Boniface Historical Society.

La Verendrye—whose full name was Pierre Gaultier de Varenne, Sieur de La Verendrye—penetrated during the early 18th century to what now is Western Canada by way of

Ontario Builds Homes For Police Members

TORONTO (CP)—Government-built, low-rent housing some day may be provided for all Ontario provincial policemen and their families.

Attorney-General Roberts says that since 1954, 155 housing units have been built and 59 purchased in an effort to supply accommodation for members of the 18,000-man force who encounter housing problems when transferred to new areas.

Officials of Local 213 will go to Seattle for talks with union officials there Monday and Tuesday.

The strike began early in March when 50 teamsters struck at the British Columbia Electric Company's big hydro power project at Bridge River, 125 miles north of here. It spread to other projects and workers in many other trades honored teamster picket lines.

In all more than 5,500 men, only a small fraction of them teamsters, now have been idled in various parts of the province.

West Coast Waters Exploited By U.S. Fishermen, Union Says

Handicapped Artist Visited By PM, Wife

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and his wife, their Bermuda holiday nearly spent, Friday called on a handicapped Canadian artist who paints with a brush gripped in his teeth.

"I consider every one of Earl Bailly's paintings a miracle," said Mr. Diefenbaker after looking at an exhibition of the Nova Scotia painter's works in a Bermuda home.

Mr. Bailly, crippled by polio as a child, was a guest there and Mr. Diefenbaker said that one Bailly painting already hangs in the Ottawa National Gallery.

He hoped more would be hung when a newer, larger one was completed.

Thursday the Diefenbakers enjoyed the sun on a private yacht and Friday night they dined with Governor Sir John Wood, returning to Ottawa today.

Mrs. Diefenbaker disclosed Friday that much of their time has been spent reading.

"My husband reads practically anything he can get hold of except fiction which he hardly touches."

"If there wasn't a book or newspaper around he would read the telephone book."

Mr. Diefenbaker, former criminal lawyer, added of his visit to the opening of the colony's Parliament during his stay: "If I'm visiting anywhere I can't keep away from parliaments—and I often slide into the back seat of court rooms, too."

General Motors To Close Down Nine Plants

DETROIT (UP)—General Motors said today it will shut down operations Monday at nine of its 32 Chevrolet plants throughout the country for a week.

A GM spokesman said other plants will be on a three-day work week, and several plants will be closed the following week. The announced shutdown will be to "adjust inventories." However, some of the plants will be on a regular five-day schedule.

Plants to be closed next week are in Bay City, Mich., Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, Ohio, Flint, Mich., and Tonawanda, N.Y., the spokesman said there probably would be other plants furloughed for the week. He said not all the Chevrolet plants in the cities named, which have more than one, would be closed.

NEW FULLBACK

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union have signed Maurice Bassett, 25-year-old fullback, who was with Cleveland Browns of the National Football League until mid-season last year.

The new company has reported a net cash profit of $1,517,004 compared with $1,342,786 gained by the two companies in 1956.

The report said the profit would have been higher had it not been for the non-recurring merger expense.

There was an increase in the number of crude oil wells in which West Canadian holds an interest, from 137 in 1956 to 30 in 1957.

West Canadian holds interests in 19 gas wells compared with 18 by the two companies in 1956.

18 Electrical Workers Given Differential

VANCOUVER (CP)—A B.C. Supreme Court judge ruled Friday that only 18 of 1,500 electrical workers in three B.C. companies should get more than a conciliation board offered them.

Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes made the ruling as arbitrator called in to settle a wage dispute that prompted members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL-CIO-CLC) to walk out for three weeks at B.C. Electric Company and two of its sub-contractors.

Hume & Rumble Limited and Peterson Electrical Construction Company.

The strike ended in late March when both sides agreed to have Mr. Justice McInnes settle the question of wages, the only one remaining in dispute.

Mr. Justice McInnes said Friday he found the conciliation report—which recommended increases of up to 19 per cent over a two-year contract period—was "fair and reasonable."

The sole exception he made was for 18 communications technicians, who he ruled should be given a 9½-cent-an-hour differential granted other skilled workers.

Basic rate for linemen, key group affected, will be $2.76 an hour under the award, compared with the former rate of $2.41.

Six hundred of the men involved worked for B.C. Electric on the lower mainland and Vancouver Island. The others were employed by the contractors.

Chance Here To See Sputnik, Laika Flameout

Weatherman Says Cloud Possible For Satellite's Plunge to Death

Flaming death of Sputnik II, expected early Sunday morning, could as well be over Victoria as anywhere else in the world, Dr. R. M. Petrie, director of Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, said today.

The Russian dog-carrying satellite, which has been orbiting around the earth at 18,000 miles per hour since Nov. 3, has been sinking steadily and now is critically close to the earth's atmosphere.

Speed of its passage as it enters the atmosphere is expected to cause air friction that will set it glowing like a meteor until it burns itself and its dead dog passenger to nothing.

"I don't think anyone can predict where it will fall," Dr. Petrie said. "The earth is a big place, and a lot of it is unpopulated, but our chance of seeing it fall is as good as anyone else's—very slim."

Chances will be made even slimmer by the weather, which weatherman William Mackie said will not co-operate for the Sputnik crossings tonight at 7.30 and 9 p.m.

"We are predicting cloudy skies this evening and rain early Sunday morning," he said.

'DAY OR TWO' SAYS MOSCOW

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow radio said tonight Sputnik II will enter the earth's atmosphere and disintegrate "within the next day or two."

There should be partial clearing later in the morning," Dr. Petrie said.

Dr. Petrie said he and other astronomers saw Sputnik Friday night at 7.51, low in the eastern sky.

"We can hope for a clear view of the eastern horizon to see it at 7.30 tonight," Dr. Petrie said. "It would be much better at 9 p.m., but I'm afraid it will be in the earth's shadow at that time."

What happens after Sputnik II and its dead canine passenger enter the atmosphere is "anybody's guess," said Dr. Petrie.

Becomes Matter of Aerodynamics

"Then it ceases to be an astronomical problem and becomes one of aerodynamics," he said.

When the 1,118-pound satellite was launched it took 103.7 minutes to complete an orbit some 1,000 miles above the earth. It now makes the complete circle in 89 minutes, and has sunk to as low as 175 miles above the earth's surface.

Laika, dog passenger in the satellite, has been dead since Nov. 15.

The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., had predicted the satellite's fall for tonight, but revised its estimate on the basis of four radar sightings from the Jodrell Bank station in England.

The British sightings, confirmed by another from Alaska, showed the satellite still taking 89 minutes for the circuit. Scientists consider 88 minutes for a circuit the indication that the satellite has fallen so close to the earth that it will burn up from friction in the atmosphere.

When Sputnik II comes down, three American satellites will have space all to themselves.

Two 30-pound U.S. Army satellites are still up—Explorer I, launched Jan. 31, and Explorer III, sent up 16 days ago. Explorer II came down soon after its launching March 5.

The U.S. Navy's tiny Vanguard satellite made it into outer space March 17.

LAIKA, the Sputnik II dog, first Earth inhabitant to enter the vast black reaches of outer space, will plunge to earth in her flaming satellite coffin within 24 hours, according to scientists tracking shrinking orbit of Russian artificial moon.

U.S. Moves to Save Rights Of Fishermen of Northwest

(See also Page 29)

SEATTLE (AP)—Recognition of historic fishing rights by the law of the sea conference in Geneva is being sought by the U.S. state department.

Under-Secretary Christian A. Herter disclosed here Friday.

Herter said this would protect Pacific Northwest fishermen no matter what the conference does about changing the present three-mile territorial limit on offshore waters.

"We are trying to have retention of historically established fishing rights written into the language of any new treaty adopted by the conference that deals with sovereignty over offshore waters," the under-secretary told a news conference.

Herter said this would preserve the right of Pacific Northwest fishermen to operate along the British Columbia coast outside the present three-mile limit.

Loss of these fishing grounds would cripple Washington's fishing industry, state officials have said.

Herter arrived in Seattle Friday to address the opening banquet of the seventh annual Washington state international trade fair.

The Geneva conference apparently has deadlocked over a Canadian proposal for extending the offshore fishing limit to 12 miles, but Herter said support is growing for a compromise plan by India which would allow each nation to establish its own limit between three and 12 miles.

"This would permit independent negotiation with Canada over West Coast fishing grounds even if the 'historic rights' provision is not adopted," he said.

Herter made a strong appeal in his trade fair speech for support of the administration's reciprocal trade and mutual aid program.

"If we do not make it possible for nations of the free world to trade with us they have no alternative but to trade with the Soviet Union," he said.

"What could be greater folly than to push them into the crushing embrace of the Russian bear?"

$1.8 Million Bonds Theft Charges Laid

Suspect in Court In Montreal Case

MONTREAL (CP)—Jean Paul Pelletier, 51, today was arraigned in criminal court on two charges arising from a $1,800,000 bond theft here in January.

Pelletier, arrested in Quebec City as he allegedly attempted to pass $10,000 worth of stolen bonds, was charged with possession and theft.

Preliminary hearing was set for Friday, and he was held without bail.

Meanwhile, Sergeant Leo Plouffe, police medico-legal expert, is returning from Europe where he had been investigating reports that some of the bonds, stolen from a Montreal trust firm and its subsidiary, had appeared in Paris and Zurich, Switzerland.

He had reported success.

Police Friday night carried out a second raid in connection with the case. They said there were no arrests but some "interesting discoveries" at a west-end home.

Earlier this week, a police raid uncovered $72,000 worth of the bonds plus $1,500,000 in pure heroin.

The bonds and heroin were discovered in an expensive apartment.

Police have declined to say publicly just how the narcotics and bonds may be linked but there has been speculation that narcotics are being traded for the bonds.

His present plans are to continue as head of the party, Liberal leader Lester Pearson told reporters in Ottawa on return today from post-election holiday in Florida. The party will have to be reorganized "from the ground up," he said.

13-INCH SNOW

Winter's Final Fling

CHICAGO (BUP)—Winter took a departing punch today, dumping up to 13 inches of snow across a wide band of northern New Mexico.

Residents of Las Vegas, N.M., woke to find 13 inches of snow blocking walks and roads. An eight-inch blanket covered Los Alamos, Cuba and several other points in the state.

The wet, heavy snow slowed traffic to a crawl on main highways and knocked mountain roads out of use. State police said strong winds were blowing up huge drifts.

Elsewhere, most of the nation basked under sunny skies, although rain and drizzle pelted an area from lower Michigan south to Kentucky and eastward to Pennsylvania.

A blimp at South Weymouth naval air station, Mass., collapsed under 11 tons of snow as it was being towed into a hangar. No one was injured.

LINE UP GIRLS, IT'S FREE

MONTREAL (CP)—Plans have been announced for selection of a beautiful Canadian girl as "Miss Maple Leaf-Canada" to compete in the October Miss World contest in London, England.

Emile St. Pierre, Montreal businessman, said today contestants from all parts of Canada are to be brought to Montreal in September for a week of civic appearances, a talent show and a final grand ball.

The winner is to receive a cash award of $3,000, an all-expense trip to London and Paris and a $1,500 wardrobe.

Earlier this week, a police raid uncovered $72,000 worth of the bonds plus $1,500,000 in pure heroin.

The bonds and heroin were discovered in an expensive apartment.

Police have declined to say publicly just how the narcotics and bonds may be linked but there has been speculation that narcotics are being traded for the bonds.

Police Friday night carried out a second raid in connection with the case. They said there were no arrests but some "interesting discoveries" at a west-end home.

It was the third cancellation since the start of racing this season.

Weed Compound Regarded New Anti-Cancer Weapon

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says Canadian medical scientists have extracted a compound from a Jamaican weed which they believe may become a weapon in the war against leukemia and its related cancer growths.

The newspaper says the compound is from wild periwinkle, a weed that grows profusely in Jamaica.

The discovery "is so important," the paper says, that Dr. Robert L. Noble, associate director of the Collip Medical Research Laboratories at the University of Western Ontario, and an associate, J. H. Cutts, will present the findings of their research at a meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research in Philadelphia Sunday.

The Telegram adds: "Though the research group stresses that studies are still exploratory, and that any application of its findings still lies far in the future, the discoveries are regarded by cancer authorities as among the most significant of 82 projects under way in Canada through the support of the National Cancer Institute and the Canadian Cancer Society."

Slaying Jury Backs Chief On Lookout for Sex Fiend

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police Chief George Archer's warning that women should not walk Vancouver streets unescorted at night was re-emphasized Friday by a coroner's jury.

It was the only recommendation of the jury which probed the brutal sex fiend slaying of Mrs. Evelyn Mary Roche, 39. The jury decided she was murdered by a person or persons unknown.

Mrs. Roche was found murdered—stabbed seven times in the chest and back, three times in the throat—a week ago Thursday night in a lane half a block from her home.

Police have blamed the killing on a sex fiend they fear will strike again at any time.

Frank, 14, and Sharon, 16, the victim's two children, were the chief witnesses today as the inquest was completed.

Both testified that the only

and "nothing unusual happened" the afternoon and early evening before their mother went out to her death.

John McKenna, a railway machinist, told of finding the body late Thursday while on his way to work.

He also said he saw a young man in a two-tone blue car make two trips around the area without apparent reason while he (McKenna) waited for a friend to help him.

He said he thought the car might be a 1956 model Chevrolet.

Detective Sergeant Bill Morphet said the first officer sent on the murder call saw a similar car parked several blocks away at Broadway and Slokan as he rushed to the scene.

However, the officer took no further note of the car and police have not been able to trace it since then.

OTTAWA (CP)—The army's new armored personnel carrier is almost ready for the production line.

Authorities said Thursday it will be about two years before full-scale production is under way. Contract negotiations have not opened but the army will order millions of dollars worth of the carriers, probably from the Canadian automobile industry.

Prokofiev's Idiom Easily Understood

By HUMPHRY DAVY

If popular opinion was sought to decide who are the favorite contemporary composers today, George Prokofiev would certainly be high up on the list. This is borne out by the increasing demand for his works since his death in Russia in 1953.

Prokofiev's popularity is largely due to his works being neither reactionary nor extremely futuristic. He can be understood. This is especially so with regard to his works written for piano and orchestra or violin concertos.

He was a prolific composer as his opus numbers attest. His concertos total eight, five for piano, two for violin and one for cello.

Davy

Virtuoso Isaac Stern on a new Columbia record (ML5243) plays two of the composers' violin concertos. It's the first LP coupling of these two works by the same artist. Accompaniment by New York Philharmonic under direction of Dimitri Mitropoulos and Leonard Bernstein.

"Callas at La Scala—her great opera revivals" (Angel 35304), is a record which should prove popular with opera-lovers. The Italian artist sings selections from Cherubini's Medea, Spontini's La Vestale, and Bellini's I Puritani and La Sonnambula. She is accompanied by the orchestra and chorus of La Scala.

Personally, I prefer to hear Maria Callas in a complete opera. It is the only way to appreciate fully the art and personality of this great singer. Her recorded performances in Il Traviata and Tosca are unrivalled.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Religious Art Reflection Of Motive and Attitude

"In holding, as I do, that there is such a thing as religious art distinct from other forms of art, I recognize that I run counter to the fashionable aesthetic doctrines of the moment. But, as the reader will discover... I hold that the true character of a work of art is determined at bottom by the artist's attitude and motives, and when that attitude and motive are religious the art produced seems to me to have for that reason a character of its own."

Ever since I saw the memorial exhibition of works by Katherine McEwen at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria I have been trying to assess the reason why such a brilliant painter as she was should have lived her final years in comparative obscurity.

The answer is perhaps to be found in the above words written by R. H. Wilenski in 1927, quoted from the preface to his book: The Modern Movement in Art.

(The book, a "classic" for students and connoisseurs, has just been re-issued in England, but I have quoted from the original preface.)

And, of course, I am not in any way decrying Katherine McEwen's reputation as an artist or personality; I am merely using Mr. Wilenski to underline how ominous and persistently short-sighted "fashionable aesthetic doctrines of the moment" can be.

I only wish Mr. Wilenski had written a guide for critics when reviewing memorial exhibitions. In my experience such exhibitions always find me asking myself the simple question, "Why didn't I know about this?" Or, in this particular instance, "Why didn't somebody drag me round to visit Katherine McEwen's studio?" I am sure a number of Victorians were asking themselves the same questions.

But then, memorial exhibitions are like that.

In addition to several fine landscapes and drawings, Katherine McEwen's masterpiece was, without doubt, her series of Chancel frescoes for Christ Church, Cranbrook, Bloomfield Hills, Michigan. In this exhibition one sees them only in photographs; but what a breathtaking and spiritual revelation they must be—and how very much against the fashion at the time when they were painted!

Pictorial Postures

Not today, of course. People have at last come to their senses insofar as they recognize that the religious painter is determined by attitude and motives often far more compelling than the pictorial postures of those who have never given religion much thought, one way or the other.

This does not mean that an abstractionist is necessarily an atheist. It is fairer to say that the very nature of non-objective and action painting precludes religious expression. It is why religious painters are traditionalist in style.

Nor does it follow that because one is religious in attitude one is a good painter. All of us have seen religious paintings of crass mediocrity.

And here again we return to R. H. Wilenski's "fashionable aesthetic doctrines of the moment." Even in religious works of art there is at present an increased tendency to regard religious art as fashionable.

On April 1 there opened in London an exhibition devoted to Christian Vision, which includes works by Sutherland, Roualt, Bernard Buffet, John Piper, Sir Matthew Smith, Edward Burra. In Paris there are now on view seven huge compositions by Bernard Buffet based on the vision of Joan of Arc.

The Whitworth Art Gallery, Manchester, is displaying a full-scale exhibition of ecclesiastical art, ranging in subject from mediaeval manuscript to contemporary sculpture by Henry Moore.

The 1958 Edinburgh Festival Exhibition at the Royal Scottish Museum will be devoted to Byzantine Art, and will include church treasures from the Hermitage Museum, Moscow, and from Belgium, Cyprus, France, Holland and Italy.

There have been similar religious exhibitions of recent years and others are being planned; but as a final point it is worth noting that Sir Kenneth Clark in his series of TV films with the theme Is Art Necessary?, and now being viewed in England, has chosen Art and Religion as one of the subjects for discussion.

Is this an indication that religion is "fashionable"? Is there a Billy Graham roaming the art world?

Effect of Barracks Life Theme of Fine First Novel

One of the most potent reading capsules I have swallowed this year comes in a most interesting first novel by a young American, Dennis Murphy. Mr. Murphy is 25 years old. He belongs to that generation of U.S. younger citizens who have been subjected to the Draft and his reactions to service life and what it can do to a man have been put to excellent use in his novel which is called The Sergeant.

The key situation around which the action revolves in this book is the strange attraction which a veteran, permanent force type, master-sergeant develops for a clean-cut young man who is serving his draft in a U.S. petroleum dump in post-war France. He is the only man in his company who seems to be able to ride above the debilitating effect of service life. All the subsidiary characters in some way or other have become indifferent to life, but this young man has made friends with the French, has fallen in love, and is savoring a wonderful experience.

Then along comes the sergeant, a man whose service career has so warped him that he is impervious to all values except those which authority can give. When he finds himself emotionally attracted to the young man he has no experience to tell him what to do. His reaction is to gain authority over the one he loves. This he proceeds to try to do, becoming almost sadistic in the process. The young man is half repelled, half fascinated by this display of ruthless power. His life loses its savor and his spirit is enthralled.

At the climax, through an effort which is part physical and part mental, he engages the sergeant in mortal combat and frees himself from this strange domination.

FINE CRAFTSMAN

This is not another of the now fairly frequent novels about homosexuality. The sergeant's attraction for the boy is only incidental, a motive force for the story which concentrates on the effects of barracks life rather than on the larger problem of the human psyche.

Within these stringent limitations, the author displays considerable wisdom but what makes this first novel so striking is not so much what the author has to say but how he says it.

Dennis Murphy is a magnificent craftsman. Already he has developed a lean kind of prose which represents a very high level of technical competence. This is a book to read and remember by a young author who is mourning the passing of J. McAree, the dean of Canadian newspaper columnists, who died last week after he had completed his usual column for the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Vern McAree was himself the author of two books—a collection of his famous columns at Cabbagetown Store, an autobiographical reminiscence of his boyhood in Toronto.

His sane literary judgment will be missed in the realm of Canadian letters.

GRIMACING BRAVELY, Times' reporter Kerr donned a crash helmet today and prepared for a drive through town with Mandrake, the blindfolded magician. It was unique, but uneventful, said Kerr, who went home early. Mandrake is recovered sufficiently to give a magic show at Central Junior High School tonight at 8 for Lions' charities. VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, APRIL 12 17

MONTÉ ROBERTS

Britain's leading men's fashion magazine has some rather nifty things to say about newspapermen.

About the kindest reference the magazine, namely the Tailor and Cutter, makes to newspapermen is to call them "tatty devils."

As a newspaperman, I do not know whether to be angry or just terribly, terribly hurt.

Possibly it would help me decide if I knew what "tatty" means.

On the other hand, it might be better if I remained ignorant.

The unkind remarks in Tailor and Cutter were made in the course of a defence of the wardrobe sported by Liberator. (Remember him? He has teeth, a piano, and empty-nine million dollars.)

The magazine suggests newspapermen quit criticizing Liberator's glittering costumes and examine the "traditional mess" of their own clothes.

Liberator's clothes are referred to as "excellently imaginative."

Says the magazine: "When the ill-dressed minions of London's newspaper row put themselves in the insecure position of criticizing Liberator's clothes, they might have a look at the traditional mess in which they wrap themselves daily."

"The journalist on the whole is a tatty devil and all to no purpose. Journalists do not appear as sartorial characters nowadays. They just look dull, tired, and untidy."

Well, now, look here, Tailor and Cutter.

We journalists may be tatty, whatever that is.

But it isn't our fault. Just like men in every walk of life, we wear the clothes our wives pick out for us, bought with the money left over after our wives buy THEIR clothes.

The reason Liberator looks so sweet, and we look so tatty, is simple.

Liberator doesn't have a wife to pick out his clothes. He just has a piano, teeth.

And empty-nine million dollars.

ASK THE TIMES

Q—Is there a choir in Victoria that a person can join other than a church choir? Mrs. D. B.

A—Victoria Choral Society is a non-religious mixed choir conducted by Graham Steed who can be contacted at 3-1521 or 2-6272. There are also the Arion Club and Meistersingers, both male choirs. At present no open membership female voice choir is active in Victoria but the Schubert Club plans to renew activity next fall. Information concerning any of these groups can be obtained through The Times music editor.

Anyon wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor, Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve problems.

London's Big Ben may carry a plaque stating the famous clock "marks time for British Columbia."

The Greater Victoria Centennial committee will write London authorities pointing out that B.C. and Big Ben are both the same age—100 years old this year, and asking that permission be granted for the committee to mount a plaque in the clock tower.

"The Life and Art of Kahlil Gibran" will be discussed by Mrs. Gladys Cooper of Hermes Lodge, Vancouver, at a public meeting sponsored by the B.C. Society Sunday 8 p.m. at 904 Government Street.

Fined $50 in Oak Bay police court Friday for consuming liquor in a public place were John Percy Bacon, 3700 Epsom, Douglas Skillings, 3366 Cedar Hill, and Allan Sankey, 4060 Shelbourne.

The trio had been drinking on the Esplanade at Willows Beach, April 3, court was told.

Guest speakers will be Mayor Percy Scurrey who will talk on a fast ferry service between Sidney and the Mainland, and Capt. G. C. D'Arcy, who will speak on preservation of Fort Rodd Hill and its development into a park.

About 50 Saanich merchants will attend Monday night's municipal council meeting to oppose Reeve Arthur Ash's plan to have store hours thrown wide open.

W. R. McBratney, store owner, actively opposing the reeve's stand, said he felt the public is satisfied with present closing hours and is able to get shopping done easily.

Cadets at Royal Roads Sunday will attend services in two city cathedrals, St. Andrew's Roman Catholic and Christ Church.

They will march from the assembly point at the CPR docks and march back to that point following the services.

A meeting of the Esquimalt council will be held Monday, 7:30 p.m., in the Municipal Hall.

Jazz Cellar Out As Fire Marshal Condemns 'Scene'

An order from the city building inspector and fire chief closed Victoria's first jazz cellar Friday.

It was stated the premises, located in a basement at 727 Fort, did not meet requirements of the fire marshal's office.

"The Scene," as the club is called, opened only last week and held jazz sessions Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

It was scheduled to open to members only each Friday and Saturday night.

A similar fate befell "The Cellar," in Vancouver, earlier this year. Both are establishments of Progressive Artists.

QUESTION: DID MANDRAKE REACH PEAK OF PERFECTION?

Cowering Passenger Reports on Blind Drive

By DINAH KERR
"Extra-sensory" perception? Mandrake the Magician called it.

Personally, I think he peeked.

But if he did, that was a feat of magic in itself.

Mandrake drove me through town today. I was blinded by pure fear. He had two business cards, strips of masking tape and a multi-folded black cloth over his eyes.

They had been put in place by Chief John Blackstock and Simon Whitlow, 15. And who would accuse the chief of police and the son of 'Christ Church Cathedral's dean of cheating?

Besides, the chief wouldn't ride with Mandrake. Even "Miss Velvet", the magician's wife, conveniently got lost in the crowd that gathered at our starting point, Fort and Quadra.

I was the only passenger.

They wanted me to sit on top of the back seat in the convertible. I didn't. The script was too close to the "Perils of Pauline" as it was.

I cowered right on the seat like an ordinary human being.

Mandrake fumbled his way to the car and our motorcycle escort Cpl. Joe Barlow started revving up.

Mandrake started the car and we moved off. We hadn't gone three feet when he waggled his fingers out the window and said "I can't find my motorcycle."

Well, I lost my heart for the whole business right there.

He waved his hands about again, as though reading Braille on the wind, and found him. The corporal didn't look around once. But Mandrake said he was watching through the rear view mirror.

The rest, mercifully, was a blank. I remember only driving down Douglas and Mandrake saying he had driven blindfolded about 70 times and never had an accident.

Then I remember driving straight for a car at Yates and Blanshard. The other driver's face was a study in horror. But we missed him.

Ten minutes later we parked in a bus zone and it was all over.

He must have peeked.

Warmest Day Of Year Friday; Unofficial 72

Weekend Outlook Points to Cloud

Shirt-sleeved Victorians basked in the warmest temperatures of the year Friday as the official thermometer reached 62 at Gonzales Heights, and at least one downtown reading touched 72.

The warm day seemed even warmer under almost cloudless skies, and with exceptionally light winds.

Outlook for the weekend is not quite so bright, but temperatures will remain mild, in the 45 to 55 degree range.

Only two cities in Canada registered higher official temperatures than Victoria Friday, 67 at Kamloops and 64 at Penticton.

$9,000 NEEDED FOR OBJECTIVE BY RED CROSS

Greater Victoria Red Cross campaign is still $9,000 short of its objective, chairman T. Ledley McMaster said today.

Residential division has met its quota but the business and industrial sections are "several thousand dollars under," he said.

Anyone missed by the campaign should call campaign headquarters at 5-6231 and a messenger will be sent for the donation.

Goal of the drive is $79,500.

The $9,000 difference "is not great, but it is vital," Mr. McMaster said. "Every dollar subscribed is required to maintain the many services and acts of mercy being performed the world over by the Red Cross."

Industry Backing First Aid Drive

B.C. industry has thrown its support behind a campaign to raise first aid standards in the province.

The improvement program, under the joint sponsorship of the St. John Ambulance Association and the Workmen's Compensation Board, will get underway shortly with the main project being the training of qualified first aid instructors.

A standard curriculum of instruction has been adopted by the sponsoring groups along with the Industrial First Aid Attendants Association.

Several B.C. industries will play a major role in this instruction program.

The Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company has loaned the services of its senior training officer at Trail, John H. Knight. He has been named director of the jointly-sponsored school of instruction for instructors of industrial first aid.

Appointed assistant directors are C. R. Rustemeyer, safety director, Canadian Forest Products Limited; George Norris, safety director, B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association; and Frank Mottishaw, first aid inspector, Workmen's Compensation Board.

The first one-week course will start April 28 in the B.C. Electric Building in Vancouver with an enrolment of 24 instructor candidates from the lower mainland, Vancouver Island and coastal area.

First Museum Caravan Due Here Shortly

The first of two museum caravans, which will tour B.C. with displays of historical interest as a centennial feature, is expected to arrive in Victoria Monday and Tuesday.

B.C. Centennial committee spokesmen said big trailer trucks have been adapted for the job and will be appropriately painted.

Exterior design will feature pictures of early stage coaches, prospectors panning gold and a sequence of travel from the days of early trains to modern aircraft.

One caravan will begin touring the mainland and the other will start on the Island and later move to the mainland. Both will be here during the surge of celebrations set for the weekend of April 26 and 27.

Immediate task facing centennial workers is storing of the various exhibits in the trucks. It is not yet determined what items will be shown. It is expected most displays will be drawn from the provincial archives in the Legislative Buildings.

PTA STAND

Peace Urged On Trustees, Teachers

Teachers and school trustees were urged to stop bickering and make sure the schools remain open in a resolution passed by the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation at the close of its four-day convention Friday.

The resolution indicated that the federation is not optimistic over the outcome of conciliation procedures set up between the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

The federation agreed to use its offices in any way possible to end the present conflict.

The two-part resolution urged that boards of school trustees "refrain from fixing teachers' salaries without recourse to negotiation and/or arbitration."

It also recommended that teachers' associations accept arbitration board awards as binding and "refrain from declaring in dispute any district where such an award has been handed down and put into effect."

Former Gunners Of 1914-18 Meet To Plan Reunion

Members of the 15th Brigade (CFA) Association will meet next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the office of Gordon A. Cameron, 612 View Street, to plan a gathering which will mark the 42nd anniversary of their departure for overseas service in the First World War.

These veterans hold their reunions every second year and they come from as far north as Prince George, as far south as Los Angeles and as far east as Calgary.

At their last reunion 87 artillerymen attended.

The reunion will be held late in May, close to the date of May 26, which was the day of their departure in 1916. All members are invited to attend the planning meeting.

Unemployed Total In District Dropping Slowly

A slow but steady drop in the number of unemployed persons in this area was reported this week by J. H. Fox, manager of the National Employment Service office here.

There are now 3,837 unemployed men, 171 less than two weeks ago, and 1,578 unemployed women, or 62 less than two weeks ago.

Up-Island construction projects have taken a number of welders and iron workers, Mr. Fox said. Women are being called for work in hotels, restaurants, cleaning plants, and in domestic service.

Probe of Death Of Woman Set

An inquest into the death of Evelyn Byrnell, no fixed address, found dead on a city street last weekend, has been ordered for April 24.

An analyst's report has been requested.

Inquest will be at McCall's Funeral Home at 10 a.m.

Wage Hike Won By City Police

10.7% Boost Awarded By Board

Victoria city police were awarded wage increases totalling 10.75 per cent over 1957 basic scale in a unanimous conciliation report today.

The award covers 93 members of the 95-member force, or all ranks up to and including inspectors.

It brings Victoria rates of pay within "a dollar or two of New Westminster and West Vancouver police wages," police union secretary-treasurer Cons. Lorne Shandley said.

Vancouver's scale for 1958 has not yet been determined.

Unconfirmed reports indicated city firemen, who also went to conciliation, were granted about the same increase as police in a report handed down today.

Spokesmen were not available for confirmation.

By the award, a first class constable will receive about $398 a month, compared with the 1957 rate of $359.58.

The report was signed by chairman W. J. Stone, the city's nominee John E. Goldring and union nominee Halford Wilson.

It said:

"From the determination of 1957 basic monthly rate, an increase of 5.75 per cent is granted, and a further 5 per cent of the 1957 basic monthly rate be added as from July 1, 1958."

"(Example: first class constable basic rate, 1957, $359.58)."

Ranks over first class constable would receive a higher increase, those under, a lower increase, but based on the same percentage.

The initial increase of 5.75 per cent is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1958.

Church Parade For 1,000 Cadets Set for April 20

More than 1,000 cadets from all Greater Victoria cadet units will participate in a huge church parade with bands and colors, Sunday, April 20, in the first such parade ever held in Victoria.

Cadets will form up at the Hudson's Bay Company grounds at 10:30 a.m. and march past the saluting base on the library steps where Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, will take the salute.

Cadets will then split into two groups to attend services at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral and Christ Church Cathedral.

During the week following, all units will hold open house for the public during parade nights, and the week will be climaxed by the first tri-services cadet ball, April 26, in the Crystal ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

POLICE LACKING NEW LEADS IN $3,000 TCA SAFECRACKING

City police continued their investigation without new leads into a $3,000 safe robbery at the downtown office of Trans-Canada Air Lines Thursday night.

A thief broke into the office safe and removed $1,800 cash and about $1,200 in cheques. Entry was by a washroom window.

Duncan RCMP reported Friday an attempt had been made to break into a safe at Imperial Oil Ltd. office at Cowichan Bay, also overnight Thursday. Entry was not gained, but a dial was knocked off the safe.

NOVICE LEARNED FAST

Victorian Takes Garden Honors

A 45-year-old Victorian with only four years experience in growing rock garden flowers, took top prize Friday at the annual plant competition of the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society show at the Crystal Garden.

The show featuring more than 500 rare plants is open to the public until 10 tonight.

John E. Erickson, 273 Paliser, a butcher by trade, was awarded the Dr. C. T. Hilton Trophy for Alpine plants which received the highest aggregate points in the show.

He beat some of the Island's most experienced Alpine plant growers.

Mr. Erickson, a former resident of Prince Rupert, moved to Victoria four years ago.

THREE TROPHIES

V. W. Ahier, president, who spends his summer holidays collecting rare plants in Alpine regions, won three trophies: for having the most outstanding plant suitable for a rock garden, the best native North American plant, and the best plant of primula polyanthus.

Albert de Mezey won a trophy for the most outstanding rhododendron—a shrub covered with hundreds of coral-pink blooms.

The trophy for the highest aggregate points in the novice section was won by R. S. Martin.

Prize winners in the children's section were: Spring Harrison, Linda Brown, Marian McDowell, Margo Wade, H. Pohidgman, Penny Wilson, Wendy Gerry and Julie Clark.

MONDAY MEETINGS

Gyros: 12 noon, Empress Hotel. Annual classification talks, 88 Battalion CEF: 8 p.m., library room, Pro Patria Canadian Legion. Appointment of committees for the re-union dinner.

Price Probe Members Meet Cabinet Here

Rising food prices in British Columbia were discussed this afternoon at an informal meeting between the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and members of the B.C. cabinet and their deputies.

The commissioners, headed by Dr. Andrew Stewart of Edmonton, were guests of the government at luncheon in the Union Club after which the informal talks were held.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said the government was anxious to co-operate with the commission by securing any information it required on prices in B.C.

With Mr. Bonner at the meeting were Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy, Provincial Secretary Wesley Black and Health Minister Eric Martin and senior government officials.

STUDENT ARTISTS donned denims this week to paint scenery for a huge school centennial pageant, "From Wilderness to Wonderland," at Memorial Arena May 29 to 31. The pageant will involve 10 junior and senior high schools and almost 1,000 students.

Montreal Triplets Doing Fine

MONTREAL (BUP)—Triplet girls were born today to Mrs. Marcel Aube at St. Justine Hospital and mother and daughters were reported "doing fine." Two of the girls weighed three pounds 15 ounces and the other two pounds 15 ounces. All three were placed in incubators.

Missionary Stabbed to Death

RANGOON, Burma (Reuters) — An English Roman Catholic missionary, Brother Edmund John, was stabbed to death here today. The alleged assailant, identified as a Eurasian youth recently expelled from the large school of which Brother Edmund was principal, was arrested.

Rite Held for Amby Moran

VANCOUVER (CP)—Funeral service was held here today for Amby Moran, one of Western Canada's most colorful sports personalities. The fun-loving Irish shipyard worker, who endeared himself to sports fans as a hockey player and baseball umpire, died in hospital Tuesday night following a heart attack. He was 64.

Body Found in English Bay

VANCOUVER (CP)—The body of a man was recovered today from English Bay, five miles off Ferguson Point. Police believe it is the body of Joseph Kopp, 37, St. Helen's Hotel, who disappeared March 2 on a fishing trip with nine-year-old James Edward Fello. Both are missing and presumed drowned.

'Quake Felt in California

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A "good-size" earthquake about 1,000 miles southeast of here, probably near the mouth of the Gulf of California, was recorded at 3:49.24 a.m. PST today. Dr. Charles Richter of California Institute of Technology's seismological laboratory said it was strong enough to cause damage if it occurred in a populated area.

Mousetrap Sprung 2,239th Time

LONDON (Reuters)—Agatha Christie, queen of the mystery writers, went to the Ambassador Theatre tonight to watch her play The Mousetrap smash the record for the longest-running play ever on the British stage. Tonight's performance was the 2,239th.

MONTREAL CASE

$1.8 Million Bonds Theft Charges Laid

MONTREAL (CP)—Jean Paul Pelletier, 51, today was arraigned in criminal court on two charges arising from a $1,800,000 bond theft here in January.

13-INCH SNOW

Winter's Final Fling

CHICAGO (BUP)—Winter took a departing punch today, dumping up to 13 inches of snow across a wide band of northern New Mexico.

Residents of Las Vegas, N.M., woke to find 13 inches of snow blocking walks and roads. An eight-inch blanket covered Los Alamos, Cuba and several other points in the state.

The wet, heavy snow slowed traffic to a crawl on main highways and knocked mountain roads out of use. State police said strong winds were blowing up huge drifts.

Elsewhere, most of the nation basked under sunny skies, although rain and drizzle pelted an area from lower Michigan south to Kentucky and eastward to Pennsylvania.

A blimp at South Weymouth naval air station, Mass., collapsed under 11 tons of snow as it was being towed into a hangar. No one was injured.

He had reported success.

Police Friday night carried out a second raid in connection with the case. They said there were no arrests but some "interesting discoveries" at a west-end home.

Earlier this week, a police raid uncovered $72,000 worth of the bonds plus $1,500,000 in pure heroin.

The bonds and heroin were discovered in an expensive apartment.

Police have declined to say publicly just how the narcotics and bonds may be linked but there has been speculation that narcotics are being traded for the bonds.

Land, Air Attacks On Rebels

HAVANA (AP)—Government troops killed 13 rebels in an air and ground attack on a sugar mill today outside the town of Sagua la Grande near the northern coast of Los Villas province. Seven rebels were killed there Friday.

About 200 rebels fighting for Fidel Castro against the regime of President Fulgencio Batista swept into the town Friday and barricaded themselves in a school. Reliable reports said the rebels had landed on the southern coast of Las Villas three weeks ago and pushed toward Sagua la Grande, about 30 miles northeast of Santa Clara.

BURN POWER PLANT

A Cuban army fighter plane swooped down on them with bombs and the rebels fled before government reinforcements from Santa Clara. But the insurgents in their flight burned two electric power plants, four or five gasoline tanks, a small lumber mill and two railway baggage cars.

This was the latest major outbreak in Castro's total war. Friday rebels raided the copper centre of El Cobre, 12 miles west of Santiago and touched off a dynamite explosion in a warehouse.

Santiago itself, heart of rebellious Oriente province, was quiet under the heavy guard of Batista's men.

Wolves Tie Burnley, Hold Margin

LONDON (UP)—Wolverhampton moved closer to the English Soccer League First Division championship today by playing a 1-1 tie at Burnley.

That kept Wolverhampton five points in front of second-place Preston, which was held to a 1-1 tie by visiting Aston Villa. Only two weeks remain in the regular season.

In other featured games, Tottenham blanked Manchester United, 1-0, for its second victory of the season over that club. The youthful Chelsea team scored two goals in the first half and wound up with a 2-2 tie against Bolton. Manchester United and Bolton meet in the Football Association Cup championship game at Wembley Stadium May 3.

Manchester City beat Sunderland, 3-1, to drop the losers into last place in the First Division. Sunderland now faces the prospect of falling into the Second Division for the first time in its long history.

NEW CRISIS IN FRANCE

PARIS (Reuters)—The French National Assembly was recalled from its Easter recess tonight for an emergency session as Premier Felix Gaillard battled for the survival of his shaky government in the Tunisian crisis.

A LOT OF BROCCOLI . . .

Cauliflower in appearance, type of broccoli by actual fact, is giant 19-pounder brought to huge size by mild winter here. Grown by H. H. Grist, Dysart Road, 15-inch breadth of vegetable dwarfs neighbor A. J. Bird. It was grown from English Sutton seed planted in spring of 1957.

U.S. Moves to Save Rights Of Fishermen of Northwest

(See also Page 29)

SEATTLE (AP)—Recognition of historic fishing rights by the law of the sea conference in Geneva is being sought by the U.S. state department. Under-Secretary Christian A. Herter disclosed here Friday.

Herter said this would protect Pacific Northwest fishermen by actual fact, is giant 19-pounder brought to huge size by mild winter here. Grown by H. H. Grist, Dysart Road, 15-inch breadth of vegetable dwarfs neighbor A. J. Bird. It was grown from English Sutton seed planted in spring of 1957.

Herter said this would preserve the right of Pacific Northwest fishermen to operate along the British Columbia coast outside the present three-mile limit.

Loss of these fishing grounds would cripple Washington's fishing industry, state officials have said.

Herter arrived in Seattle Friday to address the opening banquet of the seventh annual Washington state international trade fair.

The Geneva conference apparently has deadlocked over a Canadian proposal for extending the offshore fishing limit to 12 miles, but Herter said support is growing for a compromise plan by India which would allow each nation to establish its own limit between three and 12 miles.

"This would permit independent negotiation with Canada over West Coast fishing grounds even if the historic rights' provision is not adopted," he said.

Herter made a strong appeal in his trade fair speech for support of the administration's

His present plans are to continue as head of the party. Liberal leader Lester Pearson told reporters in Ottawa on return today from post-election holiday in Florida. The party will have to be reorganized "from the ground up," he said.

Dog-Carrying Satellite Due For Last Plunge

Flaming death of Sputnik II, expected early Sunday morning, could as well be over Victoria as anywhere else in the world, Dr. R. M. Petrie, director of Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, said today.

The Russian dog-carrying satellite, which has been orbiting around the earth at 18,000 miles per hour since Nov. 3, has been sinking steadily and now is critically close to the earth's atmosphere.

Speed of its passage as it enters the atmosphere is expected to cause air-friction that will set it glowing like a meteor until it burns itself and its dead dog passenger to nothing.

"I don't think anyone can predict where it will fall," Dr. Petrie said. "The earth is a big place, and a lot of it is unpopulated, but our chance of seeing it fall is as good as anyone else's—very slim."

Chances will be made even slimmer by the weather, which weatherman William Mackie said will not co-operate for the Sputnik crossings tonight at 7.30 and 9 p.m.

"We are predicting cloudy skies this evening and rain early Sunday morning," he said.

Becomes Matter of Aerodynamics

"Then it ceases to be an astronomical problem and becomes one of aerodynamics," he said.

When the 1,118-pound satellite was launched it took 103.7 minutes to complete an orbit some 1,000 miles above the earth. It now makes the complete circle in 89 minutes, and has sunk to as low as 175 miles above the earth's surface.

Laika, dog passenger in the satellite, has been dead since Nov. 15.

The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., had predicted the satellite's fall for tonight, but revised its estimate on the basis of four radar sightings from the Jodrell Bank station in England.

The British sightings, confirmed by another from Alaska, showed the satellite still taking 89 minutes for the circuit. Scientists consider 88 minutes for a circuit the indication that the satellite has fallen so close to the earth that it will burn up from friction in the atmosphere.

When Sputnik II comes down, three American satellites will have space all to themselves.

'DAY OR TWO' SAYS MOSCOW

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow radio said tonight Sputnik II will enter the earth's atmosphere and disintegrate "within the next day or two."

What happens after Sputnik II and its dead canine passenger enter the atmosphere is "anybody's guess," said Dr. Petrie.

"There should be partial clearing later in the morning," Dr. Petrie said he and other astronomers saw Sputnik Friday night at 7.51, low in the eastern sky.

"We can hope for a clear view of the eastern horizon to see it at 7.30 tonight," Dr. Petrie said. "It would be much better at 9 p.m., but I'm afraid it will be in the earth's shadow at that time."

Two 30-pound U.S. Army satellites are still up—Explorer I, launched Jan. 31, and Explorer III, sent up 16 days ago.

Explorer II came down soon after its launching March 5. The U.S. Navy's tiny Vanguard satellite made it into outer space March 17.

A-Bomb Death Case Doubtful

TOKYO (Reuters)—A post-mortem on a 34-year-old Japanese woman who survived the atomic bombing on Hiroshima and who died four days ago did not prove whether the bomb was an indirect cause of her death, a doctor said here today.

Doctors said earlier that the woman, Hideko Hirata, died from "radioactive cancer" following the 1945 Hiroshima raid.

Miss Hirata was one of 25 Japanese women selected to go to the United States in 1955 for free surgical treatment designed to help them toward a normal life.

Boy Drowns in River As Rescue Try Fails

AGASSIZ (CP)—A whirlpool on the tumbling Chehalis River, north of Agassiz, took the life of a 15-year-old Surrey youth Friday as he fished with his father and two friends.

Don Stanchfield was drowned in the rapids after his father made a gallant attempt to save him from a rock in midstream.

Police said the group drove up a washed-out logging road to reach the river then climbed down crags of a canyon to the water's edge. Young Don became separated in midstream and got into difficulties.

His father swam through the near-freezing, raging water to reach him. However, the youth let go before his father reached him and was carried downstream and sucked into a whirlpool.

The body has not been recovered.

MONTREAL (CP)—Plans have been announced for selection of a beautiful Canadian girl as "Miss Maple Leaf-Canada" to compete in the October Miss World contest in London, England.

Emile St. Pierre, Montreal businessman, said today contestants from all parts of Canada are to be brought to Montreal in September for a week of civic appearances, a talent show and a final grand ball.

The winner is to receive a cash award of $3,000, an all-expense trip to London and Paris and a $1,500 wardrobe.

LONDON—Nobodies celebrated it but today was the 50th anniversary of Sir Winston Churchill's first job in a British cabinet.

On April 12, 1908, Churchill was appointed president of the board of trade. He was 34 then and "child wonder" of the ascendant Liberal party.

Today Churchill was "doing the usual things" at Chartwell, his country residence in Kent.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.—Ramsay Smallwood, 39, son of Newfoundland Premier Joseph Smallwood, received $100,000 from Lloyds of London in settlement of a claim resulting from a helicopter crash last year, it was disclosed today.

Ramsay Smallwood's wife and the pilot of the Eastern Provincial Airways helicopter were killed when it crashed shortly after taking off from Harbor Grace in the Conception Bay area May 12. The helicopter hit a power line and burst into flames.

Ramsay Smallwood and his wife's twin sister were seriously injured in the crash. Premier Smallwood had turned down an invitation to fly in the doomed aircraft.

TEHRAN, Iran—Court Minister Hussein Ala today denied European press reports that the Shah of Iran is planning to marry the schoolgirl stepdaughter of Pakistani President Iskander Mirza. The girl's father also said the reports were not true.

The father, Col Mehdi Afkhami told reporters, "if such a report were true, being Safeh's father I am supposed to hear it first." Safeh is now on vacation in France and Switzerland from an exclusive girls' school in England.

READING, England—Mrs. Betty Leslie-Smith said her pet retriever, Lindy, got sick at the stomach while watching a televised medical program showing a dog with rabies.

"She turned from the set, walked over to a corner of the room and lost her dinner," Mrs. Leslie-Smith told a reporter. "Now she just doesn't display the same interest in television as she used to."

Crew Presses Picket at Sea In Atom Area

HONOLULU (UP)—A determined four-member crew aboard the ketch Golden Rule today continued its protest voyage into nuclear test area in the mid-Pacific despite an Atomic Energy Commission ban on the expedition.

The group declared it would continue to sail into the test area, "Come what may," to set up its ocean-going picket line in the Eniwetok proving ground in protest against U.S. testing of nuclear weapons.

Charles Feely, 18, and Monte Moore, 21, pleaded guilty to charges of assault with intent to commit murder.

The mother, Mrs. Roene Gasser, 24, was injured by the explosion but is recovering. Her 15-month-old son was with her but was not hurt.

MERCY FLIGHT

VANCOUVER—An eleven-day-old Ocean Falls baby was flown to Vancouver Friday for treatment of a mysterious ailment.

The baby, brought here in an incubator aboard a regularly-scheduled Pacific Western Airlines flight, weighs a mere two pounds, 11 ounces.

Weed Compound Regarded New Anti-Cancer Weapon

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says Canadian medical scientists have extracted a compound from a Jamaican weed which they believe may become a weapon in the war against leukemia and its related cancer growths.

The discovery "is so important," the paper says, that Dr. Robert L. Noble, associate director of the Collip Medical Research Laboratories at the University of Western Ontario, and an associate, J. H. Cutts, will present the findings of their research at a meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research in Philadelphia Sunday.

The Telegram adds: "Though the research group stresses that studies are still exploratory, and that any application of its findings still lies far in the future, the discoveries are regarded by cancer authorities as among the most significant of 82 projects under way in Canada through the support of the National Cancer Institute and the Canadian Cancer Society."

Slaying Jury Backs Chief On Lookout for Sex Fiend

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police Chief George Archer's warning that women should not walk Vancouver streets unescorted at night was re-emphasized Friday by a coroner's jury.

It was the only recommendation of the jury which probed the brutal sex fiend slaying of Mrs. Evelyn Mary Roche, 39. The jury decided she was murdered by a person or persons unknown.

Mrs. Roche was found murdered—stabbed seven times in the chest and back, three times in the throat—a week ago Thursday night in a lane half a block from her home.

Police have blamed the killing on a sex fiend they fear will strike again at any time.

Frank, 14, and Sharon, 16, the victim's two children, were the chief witnesses today as the inquest was completed.

He said he thought the car might be a 1956 model Chevrolet. Detective Sergeant Bill Morphet said the first officer sent on the murder call saw a similar car parked several blocks away at Broadway and Slokan as he rushed to the scene.
